We are all unique in our own way. Each of us have differences that make us one of a kind and we perform to the best of our abilities when we just be ourselves. Whether it is in the classroom, on the field, in front of an audience, or simply hanging out with friends, our individual strengths and personal characteristics are revealed through what we know best.

The years we spend in high school are important steps toward realizing who we are. It is a time when our individuality is defined through new and exciting experiences as well as unexpected misfortunes. These events leave a lasting impression on us and shape who we will become in the future, but now is the time to just be yourself.

Spirit Fever

traditional and original themes bring variety to spirit week

DANNY HUNTER

"I enjoy being the center of attention and I'm almost positive Spirit Week helped me with that."

MRS. YOUNG

"Like! Oh my gosh! It's so, like, cool to be, like, a teacher here! Rock on!"

WILL HOWARD

"Ron's the man! I love the suspenders."

DANNY CLINGENPEEL

"Being the school mascot is by far the best recognition anyone could ever receive in their entire life."

Without the usual Monday off from school, students began decorating halls and floats the Friday before Spirit Week and on into the weekend. Monday kicked off the week with the typical pajama day, this year tagged as Roll Out of Bed Day. Tuesday gave students a flashback to the 80's. "I loved 80's Day because the big earrings, tights, and cut off sweatshirts are coming back in style," said Senior Liz Caspero. Dressing up as a famous celebrity or cartoon character was on Wednesday's schedule, followed by the traditional Twin Day but with a twist. Students had the opportunity to dress up as a faculty member or dress the same as a friend. Friday ended the week with the famous Class Distinction Day. Each class wore their usual attire; Freshmen wearing white, Sophomores in green, Juniors in black, and Seniors in togas. Throughout the school, the hallways were decked out with decorations ranging from Old Hollywood to the Oscars. The Juniors were the victors of the hallway competition with the theme of Skyline Drive. Once again, Spirit Week was successful in providing students with the opportunity to display their school spirit.

Right: Seniors Danny Von Schuch, Jared Polchinski, Tucker Moore, and Sean Newton pose as the village people for Celebrity Day.

Above: Mrs. Williams poses with Seniors Lauren Boehnlein, Nichole Pulkowski, and Brooke Love prior to the Powder puff game. "Powder puff was really fun and a great addition to Spirit Week," said Love. While some students chose to dress as a celebrity, others opted to wear their powder puff uniform.

Left: Senior Jamie Drysdale, Junior Christine Louthin, and Senior Christina Remmers enjoy the privilege of being able to dress lazy. "Pajama Day was a great way for everyone to be cute and comfortable at school," said Remmers. The day gave students a chance to relax and show their school spirit.

Above: All geared up for wrestling, Sophomore Grace Cuenin and Senior Liz Strine pose with Mr. Stefanko. "The best part of Twin Day had to be all the looks we got walking around school all day in singlets." Students were able to enjoy the opportunity of dressing like their teachers.

What was your favorite day of spirit week?

Class Distinction Day	33%
Roll Out of Bed Day	30%
80's Day	18%
Celebrity Day	12%
Faculty Twin Day	7%

1. English teacher Mrs. Larimer and Junior Brian Sowder strike a pose for the camera, each adorned with matching glasses.

2. All the way from Pocohontas to cowboys, faculty Ms. Peebles, Ms. Brown, Ms. Herzing, Ms. Crowe, Ms. Goble, and Officer Hevener show off their creative costumes during the week's festivities.

3. Working hard on their class float, Juniors Solie Taghavi, Lindsey North, Michael Maguire, and Willis Davis put a team effort into making the float look its best.

4. Parading as a pirate from head to toe, Dr. Mayo smiles for the camera on Celebrity Day.

Right: Junior Billy Sharp shows off his stunting ability in this pre-game practice. "I've watched the powder puff game every year. This year I finally got to cheer, it was so exciting! I was born for powder puff," said Sharp. Each team was given time to practice different stunts before the big night .

Above: Setting for a play, Senior Megan Schaedel gets ready to block Junior players from getting to the Senior quarterback. "Playing in the same position that I did as a Junior made it easier to remember plays and made blocking people more exciting," said Schaedel. On the night of the big game, the stands were packed with friends and family ready to watch tradition happen once again.

Original Outcome...

Since 1994 the outcome of the annual powder puff game has remained constant with the Senior class coming out on top. Except for the years of 1994, 1996, and 2000 when the game resulted in a tie that could not be broken within the given game time. Over the course of ten years Senior classes have shown their strength and determination of not losing to the Junior class.

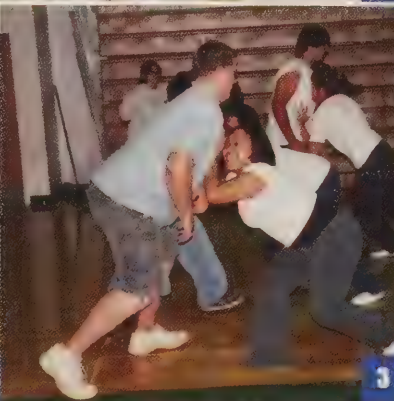

1. Senior Haley Tucker gets pumped for the game by decorating her shirt with other Senior players.

2. Senior coaches Jordan Zdaneck and Danny Hunter send an intimidating message to the Junior class.

3. Juniors Jim Brown and Lisa Peou practice their blocking for the big game.

4. Junior Gram Shick shows off his spirit while participating as a cheerleader at the game.

In the midst of the chaotic Spirit Week, the upperclassmen prepared for the traditional powder puff game. The field was groomed, the lines were freshly painted, and the stadium was ready for the most highly anticipated game of the year: Powder Puff! As girls took the field and guys experienced cheerleading, the Junior/ Senior rivalry game went down as another hard fought battle. The Junior girls came out strong by scoring the first touchdown of the night. Realizing what they were in for, the Senior class fought back and came out on top with a 24-14 win over the Juniors. "Since there is a big Junior/Senior rivalry, it felt awesome to score one of the three touchdowns and help the team come out with a victory," said Senior Fegan Hewitt. Fans not only got to enjoy a good football game, but the guy cheerleaders entertained them as well. "Being a cheerleader for the night was a lot of fun. Thanks to Mr. Herting for all his help with his coaching advice," said Junior Gram Shick. With good sportsmanship and a friendly outcome this powder puff game was one to remember.

Jennifer Montrose and Kelley Simpson

DOUG HILL

"Being a cheerleader for the night with the rest of the guys was a blast and the stunts were so much fun."

HAILEY BLACK

"Powder puff was a really good experience to show off my athletic ability."

JOHN WHEELER

"Being a cheerleader for the night made me regret not trying out for the team."

MEGAN NORFORD

"It was so much fun getting pumped for the big game with my best friends."

Above: The Junior cheerleaders pose before the game. "Practices for the game were long and hard but the outcome was great, it was a lot of fun," said Junior Brian Sowder. The Junior guys showed off all of their hard work when it came to cheering in the big game.

Above: A group of Senior players gather for a picture after their victory over the Juniors. "Being a Senior and having fun with my friends was a great experience and beating the Juniors was the highlight of the night," said Senior Devin Giaccone. Showing their excitement, the Seniors continued the tradition of ending the night with a victory.

Somethin' to Shout About

freshmen win spirit stick

KRISTINA HAMILL
"I thought our class was really spirited, and I had a lot of fun supporting my class."

BRETT THOMPSON
"It was a good time, until the end."

PATRICK BRENNAN
"Wow! We won the Spirit Stick...what is the Spirit Stick?!"

ALLYSON HIX
"It was fun, and I enjoyed performing with the step team."

At the annual pep rally, a time of decoration, excitement, and most of all spirit, the students began to fill the stadium. All of the students were dressed in their class distinction colors: freshmen in white, sophomores in green, juniors in black, and the seniors in their togas. Excitement filled the stands as each class began to stir things up and before you knew it, every student was cheering, clapping their hands, stomping their feet, and moving to the beat of various performances. Traditionally, the purpose of pep rallies are solely for supporting the football players, but in addition to supporting the school and team players, the classes also competed for the coveted spirit stick. As the pep rally came to an end, it was time to see who's spirit really paid off. This is when things became R-E-D, RED, H-O-T, HOT. To everyone's surprise, the freshmen won the spirit stick. Even though the freshmen's win was a surprise, everyone stayed pumped for the Homecoming Game and dance.

Above: Seniors Carly Moore and John Feathers strut their stuff as they take a Homecoming Court stroll. "It makes you feel good knowing your class supports you and getting the votes to be a part of Homecoming Court," said Senior John Feathers. Everyone dressed up for their announcement in front of all of the classes and had a great time participating.

Above: The J.V. cheerleaders show their spirit. "The pep rally was a fun experience, and I enjoyed performing a routine in front of my friends," said Sophomore Jamie Jerabek. The cheerleaders had a successful performance.

Left: Pumped and screaming for her class, Sophomore Grace Cuenin is making the best out of her pep rally experience. "I think the pep rally was good, because it shows how much spirit we really do have," said Cuenin. The entire sophomore class stayed energized throughout the rally.

Above: Posing for the camera after winning the spirit stick, the Freshmen Cheerleaders and Cavelettes show their excitement. "The Pep Rally was a good experience because coming into it as a freshman was a lot of fun," said Freshman Katelyn Hundley. Many of the students in the Freshmen class got the chance to sign the Spirit Stick after the rally.

Surprisingly, the freshmen won the honor of the greatly anticipated Spirit Stick.

Original Moments...

Faces of shock rippled throughout the crowd after the announcement, and the ecstatic freshmen accepted the stick with smiles on all of their faces.

Although some students were disappointed about their loss, they congratulated their younger classmates on their large outbursts of spirit.

1. Seniors Coleman Lucado and Rachel Rodgers perform the national anthem at the Pep Rally.

2. The Junior class showed their enthusiasm and spirit in hopes of winning the spirit stick.

3. Senior Homecoming Court contestants Lindsey Reynolds and Brandon Beswick smile as they strut down the track.

4. Junior Kelley Simpson and Senior Jessica Harvell celebrate the success of their Cavalette performance.

Right: Concentrating on the music director, Junior Sara Angelotti plays the street drum during halftime. "The best thing about being in the Marching Band is that no one cares if you're a little bit crazy," said Angelotti. The band played a plethora of music that allowed the diverse audience to enjoy the songs.

Above: Dancing on the float, Sophomores Myles Phelps and Kevin Kennedy enjoy performing for the crowd. "I felt our class float was in good contention for the victory, and I was extremely pleased with the dance routine," said Kennedy. Although the Freshmen won the class float, participating in the competition gave all students an exciting end to the festivities of Spirit Week.

Original Traditions...

Multiple traditions can attribute to the pumping up of the football team both before and after the game.

Prior to the game, the Varsity plays are made goodie bags by the team managers. They also unite in a traditional prayer before running out on the field, asking for the strength for a big win. After the game, the team is awarded with football cakes for all their effort and hardwork, regardless of the outcome.

1. Sophomores Lindsey Forte and Sheena Fridley, and Senior Tori Hall get pumped up prior to cheering for both the football team and the fans at the Homecoming Game.

2. Juniors Colby Senning and Kelley Simpson have fun dancing to the tune of "Twist and Shout" on the Junior class float.

3. Freshmen enjoy representing their class float's victory after hours of hard work.

4. Junior Elizabeth Andrews and Senior Anna Howard perform for the Foreign Language Department as the opposing mascots of the Bulldog and the Cavalier.

With characters ranging from Marilyn Monroe to Charlie's Angels, students had a blast with the "Hollywood" theme. The climax of the Spirit Week festivities was the win of the Homecoming Game. The crowd roared as the score board lit the final score of 55 to 14, a green and gold victory. The Varsity team worked well together all season and the winning of the Homecoming Game added to their multiple successes. "A little kid came up to me and asked for my autograph. I felt so good about that," said Junior Andrew Hutchings. In addition, various floats paraded around the field prior to the game. The Freshmen's "Old Time Hollywood" float won first place for Best Class Float, while SADD's "Night of the Living Dead" won for the Paramount Club Float. After much anticipation, Senior Carly Moore was announced as Homecoming Queen and was soon congratulated and crowned by previous queen Brittany Rodgers. From the Freshmen's win of the class float to the defeat of the George Wythe Bulldogs, never once was there a dull moment, and though the night came to a gradual close, the unforgettable stars never faded.

BETH ALLEN

"Our float as Juniors improved from our class's previous floats. It was so much fun working on it, especially when we fought each other with the paint."

LINDSEY DUNN

"Cheering at the Homecoming Game was a lot of fun, especially because we won!"

LINDSAY REYNOLDS

"Being on the court this year was an amazing experience. It was awesome getting to know some people that I hadn't known previously, and it was great for my last homecoming."

JOHANNA SAKPONOU

"I thought that Homecoming was a lot of fun, and we had a lot of fun doing the world language float."

Above: Cheering for the football team, Sophomores Caleb Johnson, Hunter Bottoms, and Freshman Jonathan Bottoms watch intensely as the team scores yet another touchdown. "I play JV football and came to support the Varsity football team. My friends and I wanted to express our spirit in a traditional fashion," said Johnson. The students illustrated their spirit by painting themselves in the school colors.

Above: Senior Lindsay Brinser dramatically performs on SADD's "Night of the Living Dead" float. "It's a great club and everyone should join. There are a lot of fun people in it," said Brinser. SADD promotes students to avoid destructive decisions in life.

Rockin' the Red Carpet

students experience a single night of fame at the annual homecoming dance

MICHELE MELLINGER
"I must say that I absolutely loved cardboard Elvis. He was a fabulous dance partner."

WES OWENS
"The 'Hollywood' theme gave the night a very special feel to it. We already felt good, but to show up with the big lights, loud music, and flashy decorations, we felt like V.I.P's."

CHRIS BLAKE
"Dancing is so much fun, and where better to do it than with your friends at Homecoming."

CHRIS DECK
"The dance is something I look forward to from the beginning of the year. I had a blast at the dance, just letting loose and having fun."

With shimmering stars suspended from the ceiling, fictional paparazzi greeted excited students down the red carpet entering the dance. Beginning at eight o'clock, students were able to dance the night away to various songs with their friends or perhaps a special someone. Unlike previous years, the dance was shortened to three hours, yet students still managed to have a blast. "I really enjoyed spending time with my best friends and my boyfriend, but I was having so much fun that the night flew by so quickly," said Junior Courtney Traylor. The night also consisted of the much anticipated crowning of the Homecoming King, Senior Danny Clingenpeel. The traditional dance between the king and queen, Senior Carly Moore, was another festivity of the night. "It was a privilege to be honored with such royalty, and it was so much fun to get the opportunity to shake my money-maker with Carly," said Clingenpeel. As the night came to an end, students left the dance with many magical memories as well as a glimpse of life in the spot light.

Rachel Hoagland and Amber DeAngelo

Above: Sophomore Alysse Lyons, Junior Mike Goodspeed, and Sophomore Brandy Finisey relax in the commons after an exhausting night of dancing. "The night was so much fun, and Alysse was the best date ever," said Goodspeed. Students were able to unwind while enjoying refreshments in the cafeteria between songs or following the dance.

Above: Sophomores Eric Mehaffy and Kristen Harris get their groove on to the "Cha-Cha Slide." "The dance was great. I loved the DJ's choice of songs," said Mehaffy. Music at the dance was diverse, allowing students to modify traditional dance moves.

Left: Enjoying the social atmosphere of the gym, Seniors Deanna Malaney, Lindsey Bowman, and Jenna Lindberg boogie the night away while chatting amongst friends. "We all went stag and had the best time," said Lindberg. The dance gave students the chance to have fun both with or without a date.

Above: Freshmen Lindsey Harney, Kristen Merritt, Marye-Ann Hill, and Whitney Haller experience their first Homecoming Dance with each other. "Homecoming was one of the best nights of my life, a night to remember," said Haller. As a new event for underclassmen, dances provided a time to get involved in a unique way.

The Homecoming Dance allowed students to break free from the classroom atmosphere and brush up on their dancing skills. Popular choices of dancing included break-dancing, choreographed songs such as the "Cha-Cha Slide" and the "Chicken Dance," and the ever popular slow dances.

Diversity in the music selection gave each student the opportunity to show off his or her individual personality.

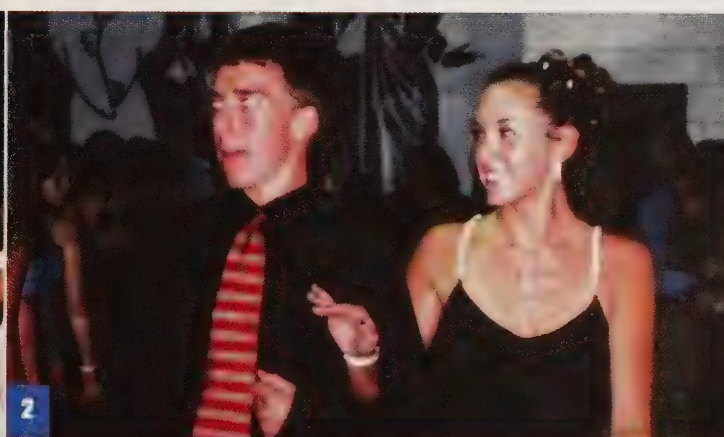

Original Moves...

1. Seniors Danny Clingenpeel and Carly Moore pose for the camera after the excitement of being crowned king and queen.

2. Sophomore Kellyn Cunningham and Elliot Burris escort each other through the gym as the prince and princess of the Sophomore Class.

3. Sophomore Kristen Felix prepares to turn in her belongings for safe-keeping prior to entering the dance.

4. Seniors Jason Greene, Sarah MacDonald, and Ali Plunkett enjoy a night filled with dancing, fun, and a million memories.

Right: Junior Class Secretary, Emily Gray, hands her fellow student and friend, Junior Zach Callaway, his ring with a smile. "I was honored to give my classmates the rings that we will wear even after graduation," said Gray. Numerous students felt it was special to be given their rings by their friends.

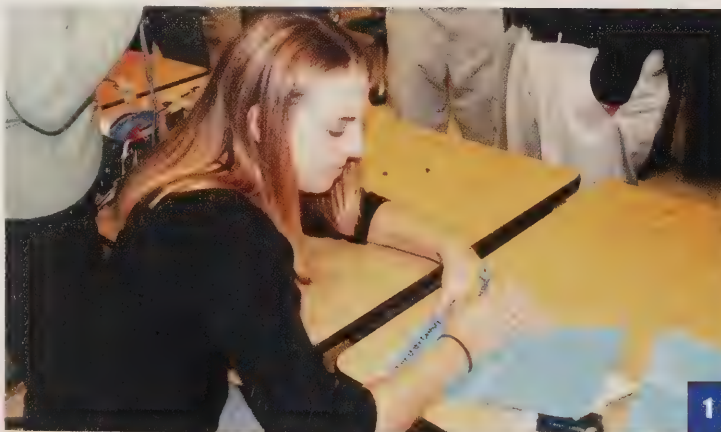

Above: Juniors Jasmine Reeder and Mary Evans take part in the tradition of twisting each others rings. "It was really exciting to see all my friends participating in the tradition," said Evans. Many contributed to the tradition and saw it as a great experience.

Original Style...

The designing of the class rings gives each student the opportunity to characterize their own ring to fit their individual personality. The gem can be chosen to fit his or her favorite color, whereas the sides may be accustomed to his or her extra-curricular activities. The boys have preferred the larger, traditional style ring, while girls chose more petite design for their finger.

1. After the ceremony, Junior Malorie Moore signs a friend's list after carrying on the classic tradition of turning her ring.

2. The Juniors prepare to walk down the gym to receive their new rings from their Junior Class Officers.

3. Junior Freddie Angel receives his ring from the Junior Advisory Council President Lauren Moon.

4. Junior Alan Yang plays the piano before and during the ceremony while his fellow students are given their rings.

It's a night that many saw as a major step in their journey to becoming upperclassmen. The annual Ring Ceremony, beginning at 7:00 p.m., consisted of numerous juniors lining up to receive their personalized jewels from their fellow class officers. "The ring ceremony was a great experience, being able to receive your rings while getting to be with our friends. It was a high school memory that I will not forget," said Junior Joseph Lightheiser. Juniors perceived their rings as a sense of maturity and feeling of accomplishment and respect. Unlike previous years, students became much more involved in the classic tradition of turning their rings. This activity gave the students a better sense of belonging to their school. "Receiving my ring made me feel like a big kid and special because everybody who saw it knew I was an upperclassman," said Junior Kristin Hardwick. After receiving their rings, students spent time with friends showing off their newfound gems at a reception in the commons. This was a brand new beginning for ringing in the new year.

Chelsea Sligh and Sarah Michalowski

BETSY KURZ

"The ring ceremony was a really special thing for me because I got to see all my friends receive their rings. It was a big part of growing up; I felt like a big kid."

KATIE NICOLSON

"I enjoyed the ring ceremony because I felt like I was taking part in the tradition of becoming a junior."

BRITTANY COLLINS

"Ring ceremony was a lot of fun just being with my friends and seeing everyone's BLING BLING."

JAMIENNE TAYLOR

"I enjoyed being able to give some of my closest friends their ring. It was a special occasion where everyone looked amazing. It was definitely a memory of my Junior year I will never forget."

Above: Juniors Jim Brown, Leland Waight, and Chris Linquist pose for the camera to show off their rings. "The ring ceremony represented that we as juniors had prevailed through the trials and tribulations of our high school careers," said Waight. Many students viewed their rings as a symbolism of success.

Above: Alex Field, Matt Faszewski, Ben Rush, and Phil Lekavich show off their glittering gems in style. "I was really excited to get my class ring and I enjoyed turning everyone else's," said Faszewski. Many of the juniors were proud to show off their rings so everyone could see them.

Bringin' the Sound to Town

the music man's performance inspires students to take another look

KIRSTEN RIIBER

"I got to play such a crazy character, so I was constantly having fun. The cast had such a great unity, which made this my favorite show."

DANIELLE SIMMONS

"This was my first musical and it is an experience every one must do at least once in their life. I have learned so much from this play."

TIMMY BEAVERS

"My part in the American Gothic picture frame was a good experience for my first play."

KELLY MORGAN

"I really enjoyed my part in the musical as Ms. Paroo. The play came together and we ended up with a great cast."

Humming the tunes of "76 Trombones" and "Trouble", The Music Man's audience left the auditorium with a new perspective on music. The play showed them that music does not always have to be about how well you can sing or play an instrument, but the emotion behind it. The comical role of Harold Hill, played by Senior Chris Blake, came to the small town of River City to con the town out of their money by starting a marching band with the townspeople's children. The play featured actors and actresses performing to the best of their theatrical and musical abilities. Christine Berg, Shannon Kessler, and Chris Fisher were just some of the returning actors and actresses. One of the highlights of the play was the barber shop quartet, featuring the voices of David Mattera, Joel Simpson, David Barnet, and Adam Guill. "It was impressive how well the quartet came together in the eight short weeks they rehearsed," said director Ginger Gobble. Viewers of all ages gave the play great reviews. The cast and crew were inspired by the play's melodic theme and the great feeling they received from being part of it.

Chris Nicosia and Liz Letchford

Above: Senior Justin Anderson and Junior Shannon Kessler perform as townspeople during the Madison Library scene. "Being my senior year, I was really happy with the way the play turned out," said Anderson. Justin also choreographed the dance routine for this scene.

Above: Sophomore Kim Rogers and Junior Carolyn Ailstock perform their Indian skit. "This was definitely my favorite scene in the play," said Ailstock. The crowd enjoyed a good laugh during this scene.

Left: Seniors Chris Blake and Coleman Lucado discuss Miss Marian. "I see this as a great ending to my career in the drama department and I loved every part of it," said Blake. This was Coleman Lucado's first play.

Above: Salesmen and women ride a train heading towards River City talking about a mysterious man. "The play is all about the people you meet and the feeling you get from being on stage," said Junior Caitlin Helms. The actors and actresses really bonded during their time on stage.

Did you know the crew for a fall musical spends an average of 20 hours a week, totaling a little over 100 hours for the play? The set for the play consisted of 19 flats as walls along with many other props which amounted to about $1,000. Running crew members learn how to move the multiple sets on and off stage during the course of the play.

Original Crew...

1. Senior Christine Berg as Marian instructs one of the town kids on piano at her house.

2. Senior Irene Kuykendall sings "Ya You Got Trouble" along with her fellow towns people.

3. Twirling her parasol, Junior Solle Taghavi walks across stage emphasizing the high class attitude of the towns people.

4. Senior Lynne Kim shows her choreography moves during "shapoopie".

Right: In the skit "Da Vinci Code," Senior Brandon Beswick plays a character who wants to read the book in order to appear smarter. "Clover Hill Live is, well you know, like your guardian angel; there is turmoil and bliss. It is also there to bail you out after a crazy night in Las Vegas," said Beswick. Beswick appeared in a number of different skits throughout the night.

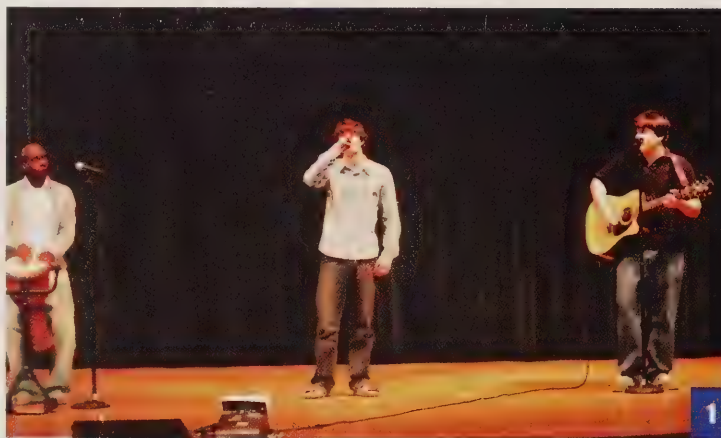

Above: Junior David Mattera played a father who took his son Junior Mike McGuire to Dr. Personality, Junior Kerry Marple. "Clover Hill Live was fun because I got to show everyone that I make a good woman and a gay guy," said McGuire. In the end maybe Dr. Personality wasn't the best choice in doctors for McGuire.

Original Sell Out...

For the past seven years, the production of Clover Hill Live has yet to create a show that has not sold out. However, this year has been the first year that this production has been the quickest sell out play in the history of this production. With the bar set this year with tickets selling out in two days, next year will be a challenge to exceed this expectation.

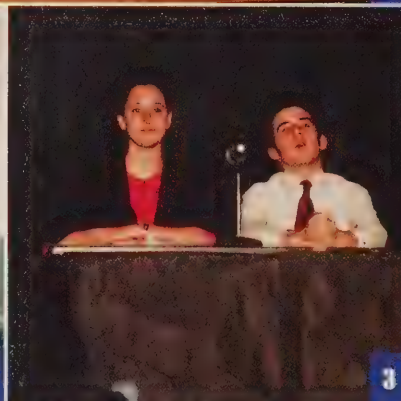

1. One of the musical performances of the night was the group Section 17, performing a cover of a Dispatch song.

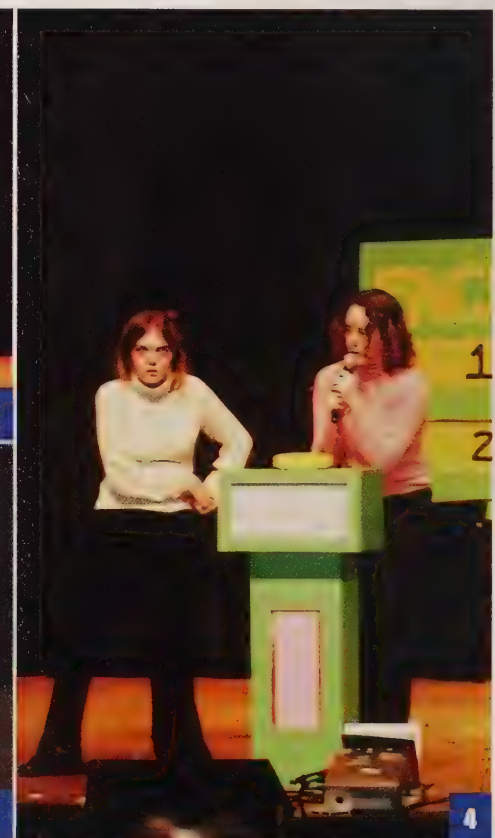

2. Junior Willis Davis tries to persuade his friend to go to a party rather than read the book the Da Vinci Code.

3. In the annual skit "News," the actors poke fun at the happenings that occur at school over the past year.

4. In the game show skit of the night, "Faculty Feud," four male and four female teachers battle it out to be champions of the school.

For a seventh straight year, the stage was set, seats were sold out, and everyone prepared to laugh at Clover Hill Live. The show has been sold out every year, but this was the first time the show sold out in record timing. From skits like the "News" to the school based skits that made jokes about everyday occurrences that happened throughout the year, these were the skits that everyone could relate to. "One of the most cleverly written Clover Hill Live shows ever," said Mrs. Gobble. The actors also brought back Family Feud, after being gone for a year. This skit pokes fun at some of the favorite teachers throughout the school. On top of these school based skits, there were also random and off the wall based performances, such as "Tea for Petey", "Queer Eye for the Scout Guy", and "Mary Rice Hopkins Circle Time". "Clover Hill Live was a lot like a continental breakfast. I mean it's not exactly a hearty meal, but in the end, you get what you paid for," said Senior Kirsten Riiber. The actors could let loose and make it their own while making their peers laugh.

JAMES WINGO
"Performing at Clover Hill Live was a blast."

SOLLE TAGAVI
"We all put so much time, effort and creativity into the show and once opening night came the laughs were the biggest reward for it all."

MS. DEJARNETTE
"Clover Hill Live was, without a doubt, one of the most rewarding experiences of my career at 'the Hill.' I had a blast trying my hand at stand-up, but I think I'll keep my day job."

KERRY MARPLE
"Performing in Clover Hill Live was probably one of the best experiences ever."

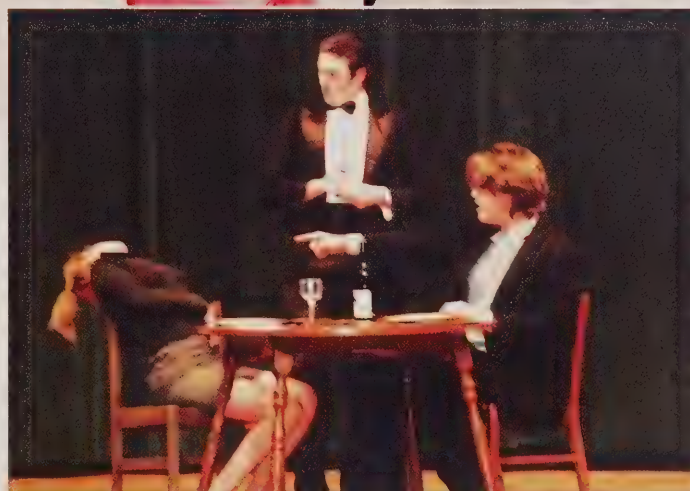

● Jennifer Montrose and Amber DeAngelo

Above: In the skit "Royal Flush" four of the male actors dressed up in Disney princess outfits to play a game of poker. "Performing was fun for me because it was a good opportunity to let the entire school know that I have chest hair and make an attractive Snow White," said Junior David Mattera. This skit provided a lot of jokes for the entire audience to enjoy.

Above: Showing their sophisticated manners, the girls in the skit "Tea for Petey" showed that its not always easy to keep up their high class standards in front of everybody.

Left: The worst scenario to ever happen on a date was played in the skit "Multiple Personality Disorder" when actress Senior Kirsten Riiber plays a girl who changes her personality every time she gets hit in the head.

Compete for Cape and Crown

juniors reign in a senior dominated competition

HARVEY YOUSSEF

"Since this year is my first year doing something on stage, it was really exciting, and I had a lot of fun showing off my talents."

OMAR WAKILPOOR

"The question about the animal testing caught me by surprise, and I completely blew off the question. Then, off-stage, it hit me...COCKROACHES!"

LANDON MICHAELS

"I was very nervous beforehand but exploded on stage with energy. It was an honor to work with the other contestants."

RONNIE NOWLAND

"It was a lot of fun just working on skits and the dance. Performing my solo on stage was pretty freaky, but overall, it was fun and the crowd enjoyed it."

School tradition requires that each year a group of eager young men vie for the title of Mr. Clover Hill. Mr. Clover Hill is an annual beauty pageant for qualified Junior and Senior boys in order to determine who will be the next king of the hill. The boys were judged in the areas of swimwear, talent and formal wear. The show opened with the boys flaunting their moves in a dance choreographed by Junior Cavalettes Kori Hundley and Kelley Simpson. The swimsuit competition consisted of a creative collection of bathing suits ranging from scandalous censored signs to tight shorts. Audience members were then awed by the talents of the thirteen competing males. The competition came to a close with the boys' final procession in their formal attire. After a prolonged delay where the audience was entertained with Senior Brandon Beswick's rendition of "Wonderful Tonight," the decision was made. The lone Junior competitor, Joel Simpson, was crowned as the next Mr. Clover Hill. "I had a lot of fun and can't wait to pass down my crown next year," said Simpson.

Left: Junior Joel Simpson graciously waves after being crowned Mr. Clover Hill. "I got to do it with all my friends and I'm glad everyone enjoyed the show," said Simpson. After a long wait for the judges' votes, Simpson's charming attitude succeeded in making him a winner.

Above: Senior Coleman Lucado woos the crowd with his rendition of "The Freshmen" by Verve. "The best part of Mr. Clover Hill was the energy and response we got from the audience. They cheered us on for every stupid thing we did," said Lucado. Many of the contestants chose to sing for the talent portion of the contest.

Original Questions...

The questions that contestants were asked during the formal wear segment were a combination of questions submitted by Mr. Clover Hill competitors as well as questions that were rejected from actual pageant competitions.

1. Senior Jordan Zdanek grooves with the moves of Napoleon Dynamite.

2. The creative and comedic sides of Senior Chris Blake are revealed during the swimsuit competition.

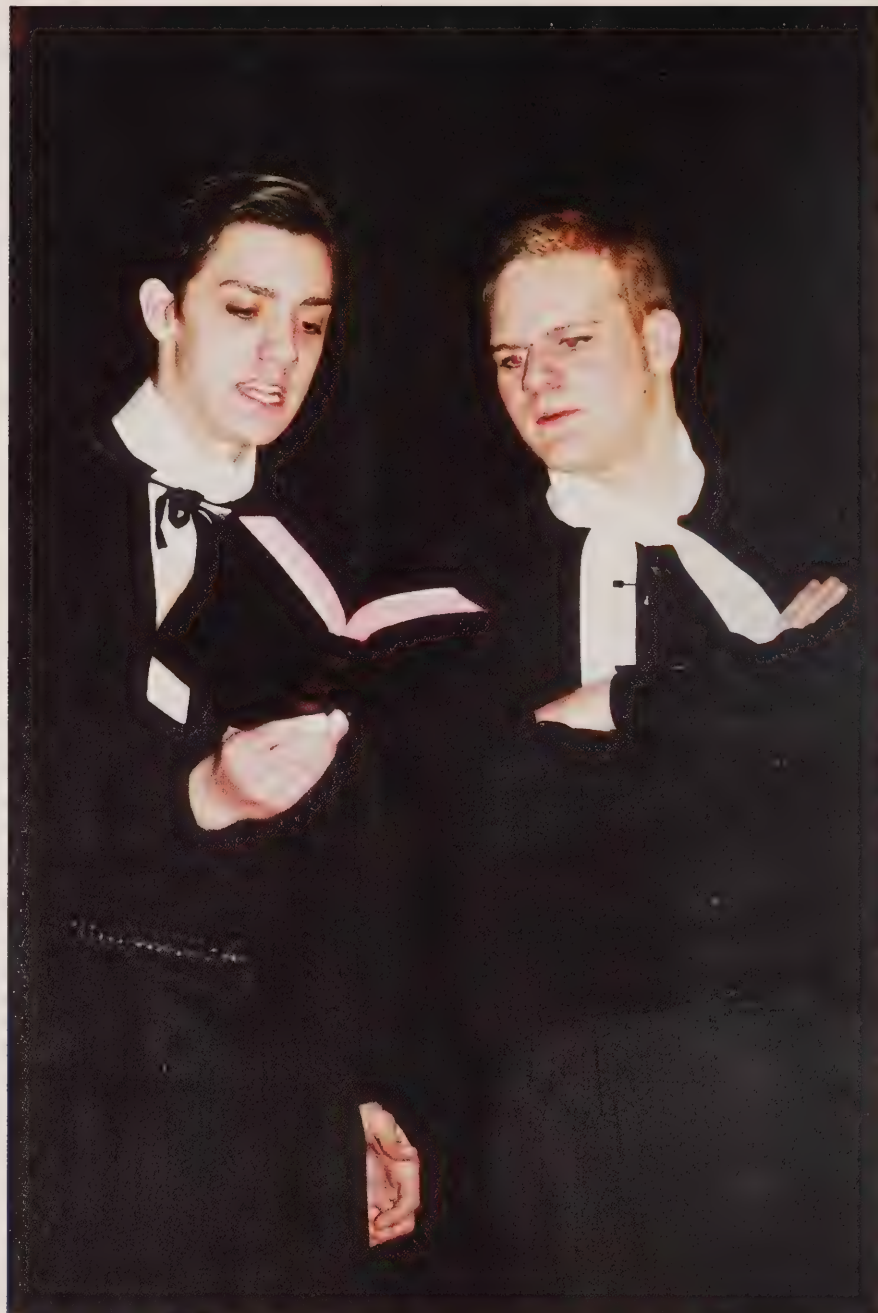

3. Ready to share his most embarrassing moment, Senior Aubrey Cox enters with a barely-there swimsuit.

4. A stylish entrance is made as Senior Matt Holt glides on to stage.

Right: Reverend Hale preaches to Reverend Paris about the unnatural happenings taking place in Salem. "Performing in The Crucible is like playing in the Super Bowl. You really want to do well because if you fail, everyone remembers you as the guy who had the chance of a lifetime and blew it," said Senior Leo Diaz. Diaz played the character of Reverend Hale.

Above: John Proctor sympathized with Mary Warren as he drew out her confession. "The play came together well and even still we had our faults the nights of the show. I was proud of the entire cast and crew for working so hard," said Senior Patrick Mahoney. This scene eventually led Mary to her betrayal of John.

Original Acts...

Originally, Arthur Miller's play The Crucible began in Paris's home. However, Director Mr. Davis decided to choreograph a scene that displayed the girls dancing in the woods and conjuring spirits to capture the audience's attention.

1. The Sheriff, played by Freshman Andrew MacMillan, arrives at the Procter residence ready to take Elizabeth Proctor away.

2. Mr. Nurse, played by Freshman Travis Adams, pleads for the release of his wife, Rebecca Nurse.

3. Tituba, played by Sophomore Leonella Diaza, confesses her part in the witchcraft.

4. Abigail Williams, played by Junior Shannon Kesler, pretends to hold dire sorrow for Betty Paris who has fallen into an unnatural sleep.

The Cavalier Players presented Arthur Miller's The Crucible under the direction of Mr. Davis. With a few alterations and new approaches, the cast brought a new light into the world of colonial America. The play began with a group of girls dancing, chanting, and conjuring in the woods. Reverend Paris stumbles accidentally into the children's games and accuses the girls of turning away from God to practice witchcraft. The rest of the play centers around the effects of the girls' dishonesty. Pretending that witchcraft was amidst the town of Salem, the girls ended up costing several innocent people their lives from hangings. After months of long practices, the crew members were happy to see the final effect of all the hard work. "I really enjoyed working with such a great cast and seeing all the different talents and personalities they had to share with us and the play itself," said Junior Barbara Ailstock. All of the performance nights ran smoothly as the actors and actresses welcomed the applause at the last bows.

● Anne Longerbeam and Kenzie Lockie

WES OWENS

"I greatly enjoyed The Crucible because it was an excellent opportunity to explore my artistic and dramatic abilities in the performing arts."

BRIDGETTE ENOS

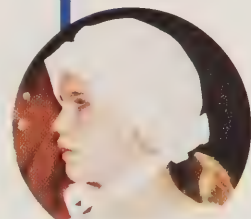

"Being in the play was a wonderful experience with many challenges accomplished."

THOMAS SAUNDERS

"All the work that we put into it, all the time, all the emotion, all the struggle, was worth it, every moment, just to hear that crowd."

RYAN JOHNSTON

"It was a lot of hard work, but the bonds made by the cast really pulled us through to an excellent show."

Above: Judge Danforth questions Mary Warren who has just confessed to witchcraft.

Right: Elizabeth Proctor, played by Junior Teri Du-Long Rae, stares into the eyes of her husband. "I loved putting this together, everyone interpreted the play differently," said Du-Long Rae. Her husband was played by Senior Patrick Mahoney.

Above: Junior Shannon Kesler played the role of Abigail Williams, a girl in love with John Proctor. "Performing The Crucible was definitely a challenge, but our cast was so incredible that I think we did the play justice," said Kesler. The cast performed the play two more times after opening night.

A Taste of Italy

students experienced a night under the stars of venice

JESSICA KING

"Prom was a memorable night because I had fun getting ready with my friends and riding in a limo."

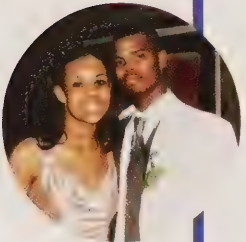

KAYLI ROWSELL

"There was so much food; it was so hard to choose what I wanted."

FEGAN HEWITT

"Having this be the only prom that I attended, the Junior class did an excellent job making it very memorable for me."

ALEX SIMS

"The atmosphere of Venice was portrayed well, which set a romantic mood for the rest of the night. I had a lot of fun with my friends and boyfriend."

Upon arriving at the Holiday Inn-Koger Center, the Junior and Senior Class were to experience "A Night in Venice" for their annual prom. At the entrance, the main feature was a Venetian-style waterfall and bridge, the place many found to be the perfect spot for a photo opportunity. "It all seemed to pay off seeing people posing for pictures by the bridge I helped create, paint, and decorate myself," said Junior Megan Celuck. The Junior Advisory Council spent numerous hours planning, building, and constructing the scenery. Once it was all put together, students gathered on the ballroom floor to dance to music provided by a local DJ. The Prom Court followed by the announcement of the 2005 Prom King and Queen began at 10:30 P.M. Senior Ryan Finnerty was crowned Prom King and Senior Liz Strine was crowned Prom Queen. "Of all the beautiful women I have danced with, Liz was the best example of a real lady," said Finnerty. Around midnight, as the dance came to a close, students headed over to the Robious Sports and Fitness Center for Post Prom activities.

● Maddie Woods and Maggie Dupler

Above: Juniors pose for pictures before heading to dinner. "We decided to take pictures at Sunday's by the water, but didn't know what we were in for when the sun stuck around, making us all squint," said Junior Brian Seal. Sunglasses are not usual attire, but Seal and friends sported them not just for style.

Above: After dropping off their tuxedo coats in the closet, a group of Junior and Senior friends caught up on talk of dinner and pre-prom festivities before they advanced to the dance floor.

Left: Limousine services were a popular way that upperclassmen chose to make their Prom night different from any other.

Left: Grins spread across their faces, Seniors Ryan Finnerty and Liz Strine posed after being crowned Prom King and Queen. "I was surprised to be crowned, but it was a good way to end my senior year," said Strine. The couple took their first dance to "You Look Wonderful Tonight" by Eric Clapton.

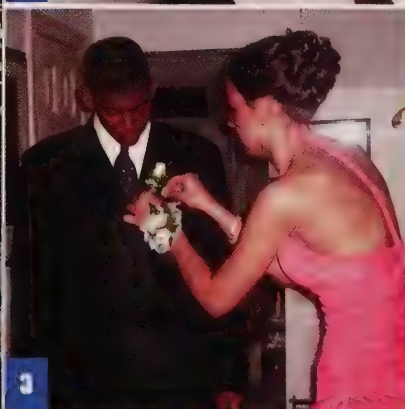

Above: Senior Chris Alexander washes his car the day of Prom. "I wanted to make sure my car looked perfect for the big night," said Alexander. Washing a car was one of the many things guys did to prepare for the evening.

1. Junior Marissa Maldonado runs ahead of her date as she enters the dance floor over the waterfall bridge.

2. While dancing the night away with friends in the ballroom, Senior Chris Manzelli pointed towards the camera man.

3. Junior Bridget Manasco carefully pins a white boutonniere to her date, Sophomore Charles Archer.

4. Posing as twins for the night, Juniors Caitlin Shrider and Shannon Kesler show off their matching dresses.

Right: Senior Krista Lepire soars through the air on the new trampoline-bungee jumping contraption. "I'm going to the Air Force Academy this fall, but this was my first real flying experience!" said Lepire. Students could bounce on the trampoline and then suspend in the air on this new, popular attraction.

Above: Juniors Megan Cox and Kristen Monahan model their matching rose tatoos. "I had fun getting a fake tatoos. Post prom was a great way to relax after a long night of dancing," said Cox. These press-on tatoos ranged from sea turtles to shooting stars.

Original Beginnings...

Did you know that the first post prom was held sixteen years ago at Skate-A-Way? The rink was used as a volleyball court where groups of friends competed all night long until one team was announced the winner. Outside of the rink there was also a casino. This seemingly small beginning has grown into an annual, extravagant event.

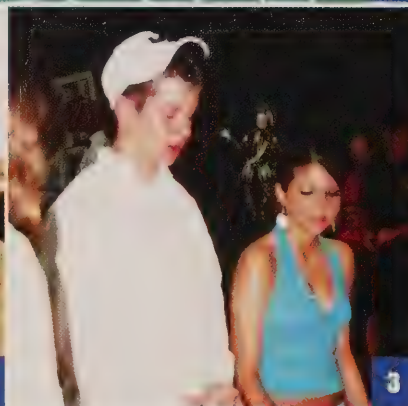

1. Juniors Ryan Goode, Chris Menster and John Hennessey count their remaining chips following a round of poker.

2. Junior Maggie McFadden giggles as she suits up for an amusing wrestling match.

3. Juniors Jayson Hoffman and Angel Brown place their bets at the wheel-of-fortune in the casino.

4. Jessica Simone finds a stopping point as she climbs to the top of the artificial rock wall.

After exiting the glamorous prom arena, students shed their formal wear and entered post prom where the Robious Sports and Fitness Center was transformed into a maze of various adventures. Sponsored by the PTSA, students were encouraged to "Stay Alive in 2005" by enjoying a fun, safe evening at post prom. New additions to the array of activities included the climbing wall, sumo wrestling, and bungee jumping. Friends branded themselves with matching tatoos while groups of friends challenged each other to inflatable volleyball matches. "Since I'm not 18 yet, I got a fake tatoo as a test before I decide if I should get one for my birthday," said Senior Jenna Lindberg. In a genuine Vegas atmosphere, gambling became legal for participants by using fake money. Attending post prom became rewarding when students won an assortment of goodies through the Money Machine and hourly prize drawings. Most of all, everyone had the chance to make memories with their closest friends. Following a romantic night in Venice, "Amoré" kept students loving their prom experience.

CHRISTINE MOEHLING
"The whole night was amazing, and post prom was a great way to end my senior year"

MICHAEL BOURNE
"I liked meeting up with all of my friends at post prom. The climbing wall was awesome!"

EMILY MYERS
"I had fun hanging out with my friends, and the bungee jump was my favorite thing at post prom."

Above: Seniors Daniel Von Schuch, Chris Ryan and Sean Newton solemnly keep their game faces on. "It was fun just playing Texas-Hold-Em and hanging out with the boys," said Newton. No real money was used, so gambling was fun and stress-free.

Right: After a jousting match, one fighting contestant is thankful for his head gear as he falls on the mat while his competitor remains standing in triumph.

Above: Sliding down the maze, Senior Melissa Rosko hurries to win the competition. "Being my last year, I definitely enjoyed myself the most at post prom and my favorite activity was the inflatable maze," said Rosko. Prom dates and pairs of friends challenged each other to race in this bouncy obstacle course.

Freaky Friday

seniors increase their participation on leadership day

T.J. KRECKER

"It was a lot of fun taking over with my best friend. Doing Leadership Day with someone I know made being up in front of people easier."

JENNY HEVENER

"It was a great experience to see the life and day of my dad. I had a blast!"

NICOLE HALLER

"We had a lot of fun working with the lunch ladies. They were so nice to us and made Senior Takeover Day a great experience!"

NICK COX

"It was a lot of fun working with others to take over Mr. Lawson's class. We got a different perspective of things and our classes were a lot of fun."

On an unusual Friday in April, senior students were given a chance to trade places with their favorite teacher or faculty member. Although this tradition has been going on for more than twenty-five years, more students were given an opportunity to participate than in previous years. Some staff members had five to ten requests to fill their shoes for the special day. In order to give as many students an opportunity to experience Senior Leadership Day as possible, senior sponsors Ms. Lukens and Mr. Martin assigned each student a period to take over for the teacher of their choice. Teachers such as Ms. Bird and Ms. Biby had three students each. Senior Molly Tucker got the chance to be Vice-Principal for a day when she took over for Ms. Wade. "Ms. Wade's job is really fun and action packed. She is like a secret agent because she gets to use walkie-talkies and spy on the teachers," said Tucker. Aside from teachers, many custodial jobs were taken over as well. "Taking over for the custodians made me appreciate what they do," said Senior Meagan Kohut. Seniors noted that this was a day they would never forget. They gained a new perspective on the place that they have attended for the past four years.

Left: Senior Toral Gandhi was one of four students to take over Ms. Lukens' class. "Ms. Lukens gave us so much freedom in deciding the lesson plans," said Gandhi. The four students had a lot of fun whether playing Monopoly or designing sports drinks for marketing.

Above: Seniors Meagan Kohut and Tracy Drum took over as custodians. "I really enjoyed Senior Takeover Day because it made me realize how much the custodians do for our school," said Drum. Both of the girls gained a lot from their experience and continually check after their peers to make sure they are keeping our school clean.

Below: Senior Chris Fisher demonstrates his teaching abilities by giving an overhead lesson to Mr. Triesler's class.

Above: Senior Omar Wakilpoor, Mr. Goobic, and Senior Chase Grinnel demonstrate the password to get into Mr. Goobic's class. "I could tell you what the sign means, but then I'd have to hurt you," said Goobic. The hand signs were created by Mr. Goobic to help his students remember information for his tests.

Original Seniors...

Senior Leadership Day is an annual spring event. After waiting three years, Seniors look forward to taking over the classes of their favorite teachers. Students aren't limited to taking over just teachers; they can take over the roles of anyone from the principal to janitors.

1. As janitors, Seniors Aubrey Cox and Laura Tomlinson take care of the dirty work for the day.

2. Seniors Koni Garofalo and Emily Koon take a trip to the mail room with their takeover teacher Ms. Mattera.

3. Seniors Paul Shin and Greg Stafford add a humorous twist to their custodial duties by wearing shirts and tool belts.

4. Senior Chris Lowery takes over Ms. Reynolds' class and teaches them the day's lesson.

Right: Sporting their stylish swimwear, Seniors Aubery Cox and DJ Short pose for the camera. "The water was freezing, but my friends and I had a great time playing volleyball and swimming," said Cox. The boys enjoyed entertaining their classmates with their original swim trunks.

Above: A group of Senior guys take time out of their fun to pose for a quick picture. "I got to talk to friends that I usually only have a chance to say hi to in the hallway or who are not in my classes," said Senior Michael Byrd. The pool party gave seniors an opportunity to catch up.

Original Grub...

Every year the picnic is held on the football field inside the track. This year, the lunch menu included barbeque pork, baked beans, cole slaw, whitehouse rolls, and brownies for dessert. Although the lines were extremely long, students felt it was certainly worth the wait.

1. A group of guys play basketball in the water at the Senior Pool Party.

2. After lunch, Senior Jaime Orrick passed the time by blowing bubbles on the field.

3. Seniors participate in a game of ultimate frisbee after lunch was served at the picnic.

4. With many of his friends looking on from the sideline, Senior Chris Hazell dribbled down the field.

seniors soak up the sun at the senior picnic and pool party

The sun returned from hiding all week to yield a summertime feel in the weather for the annual Senior Picnic and Pool Party. On Friday, May 27, 2005, seniors were given a break from classes to attend the Senior Scholarship Assembly. After awards were distributed, students changed out of their cap and gown and headed down to the football field for the picnic. "After sitting in the auditorium for an eternity, we were all ready to get outside and stretch our legs," said Senior Jack Wilson. While students socialized among themselves, food was handed out to a very long line of hungry seniors. Throughout the day, frisbee, soccer, and football were among many of the activities that students participated in. Following the picnic, fun and games continued at the Woodlake Swim and Raquet Club, a pool not too far from the school. "I went to jump into the pool, but the water was so cold I just decided to lay out instead," said Senior Courtney Kastetter. Celebrating the end of their high school education, the graduating class of 2005 finished the year with many keepsake memories of the Senior Picnic and Pool Party.

PAUL SHIN

"Our Senior Picnic was a lot of fun and I had been looking forward to it since freshman year; I can't believe it's already over!"

JULIA NICULESCU

"Even though the water was freezing, I had the best time hanging out with everybody at the picnic and pool party."

Above: A gathering of friends shared stories during their lunch on the soccer field. "Hanging out at the picnic was such a great way to enjoy the beautiful weather with everyone," said Senior Megan Schaedel. While some students chose to play sports, others decided to sit and chat with fellow classmates.

Right: While a few girls sat out on lawn chairs, others chose to catch some rays while cooling off in the pool.

Above: Taking a break from the festivities, some friends rest in the stands. "It was a very nice day to hang out or play sports," said Senior Matt Bowman. Students joined together and played games of ultimate frisbee, football, and soccer.

A Comedic Crime

seniors utilize the senior show as a finale to their high school performances

HAILEY BLACK

"The Senior Show is such a great experience. For some of us, it's the last play we will ever be in, so we try to make every moment last, at least in our memories."

LEO DIAZ

"This was the most fun I've ever had in any school play. It's so hard to think that there are no more plays to audition for."

LINDSAY SWEETLAND

"The Senior Show was a fun way to end my acting experience with all of those I have grown and learned from and show my gratitude to them all."

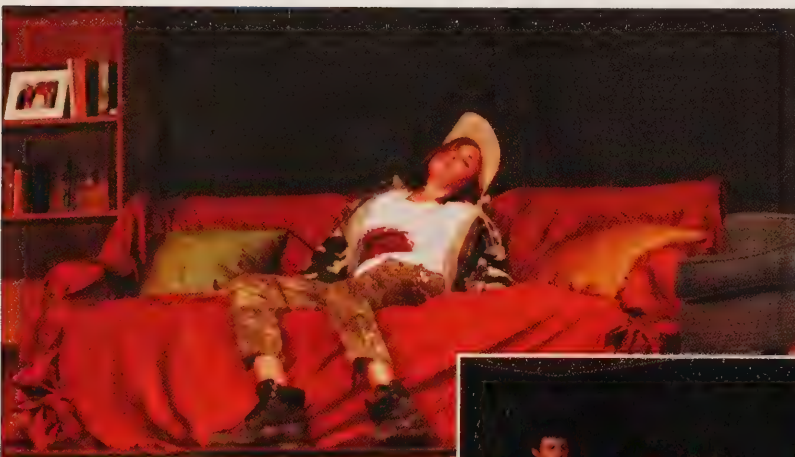

BRANDON TROST

"It was an honor to be able to perform with all the great actors. I'm glad I was in such an amazing show."

Though many of the students in the Senior Show have been performing in plays since Freshman year, "Next Victim, Please" proved to be their last opportunity for success. As the final show, the play allowed twelfth grade performers to end their years of hard work in an amusing way. The play intertwined a dream into a suspicious reality of murder, envy, and humor. Although the play required demanding hours spent learning lines, practicing scenes, and rehearsing background changes, the cast worked diligently to perfect and create a show worth remembering. All of the student actors and actresses cherished their final moments upon the auditorium stage, perfecting their lines on one final set. "The Senior Show was a nice farewell to my friends, a farewell in the form of a production," said Senior Chris Fisher. The Senior Show was not only a culmination of hard work, strong actors, and dedication, but it was a way for students to celebrate both the excitement and sadness of their final play. Although they have departed, Seniors left the lights with laughter, smiles, and many memorable moments.

Above: Senior Kirsten Riiber performs her death as the character of Rebecca. "I must say this show was the perfect way to end my Senior year. I really felt that I related to my character on so many different levels," said Riiber. Throughout the play, many characters overcame any instance of stage fright as they were faced with transforming their many diverse personalities.

Left: Cast members of the Senior Show exhibit their performance skills as they rehearse for the big night. "The Senior Show proved to be a success," said Senior Adam Guill. After many hours of hard work and commitment, Seniors put on a show worthy of remembrance.

Left: Seniors Irene Kuykendall and Thomas Saunders reveal a twist ending to the Senior Show. "It was a great way to end four years of theatre. We had a blast making the show," said Kuykendall. The play allowed the cast to say farewell to their performances in a humorous manner.

Above: Seniors Hailey Black, Kirsten Rüber, and Christine Berg, and Sophomore Katie Wall await the conclusion of Colonel Murdock's will. "As a Sophomore, it was a privilege to perform with such a talented cast and a great way to say goodbye to amazing friends," said Wall. With a battle over who would receive their dying father's money, the play revealed that the fearsome realty was simply a dream.

Original Character...

Though the Senior Show was performed primarily by Seniors as a finale to their high school careers, one character, Susan, was played by Sophomore Katie Wall. Her involvement in the play allowed Seniors to expand their acting abilities to incorporate an original character with an original performance.

1. Senior Chris Blake and Sophomore Katie Wall engage the audience with their comedic performances.

2. Seniors Lindsay Sweetland and Adam Guill, playing Priscilla and Herbert, plot the death of their fellow brothers and sisters.

3. Senior Brandon Beswick dictates the provisions of his will as the infamous Colonel Murdock.

4. Senior Christine Berg plays Penelope, a daughter of Colonel Murdock, listening attentively to the words of her father.

Right: Senior Class President Liz Strine delivers a speech to the class of 2005. "I really enjoyed being able to celebrate one last time together and bring back all of the memories our class has created over the past four years," said Strine. Her speech was something the Seniors will remember long after graduation.

Above: Senior girls gather on stage at the Math and Science Banquet. "Being able to talk in front of everyone was a nice treat because I could thank them all for making my high school years memorable," said Senior Sally Bull. Each student was given the chance to come to the microphone and share memories and experiences.

Original Advice...

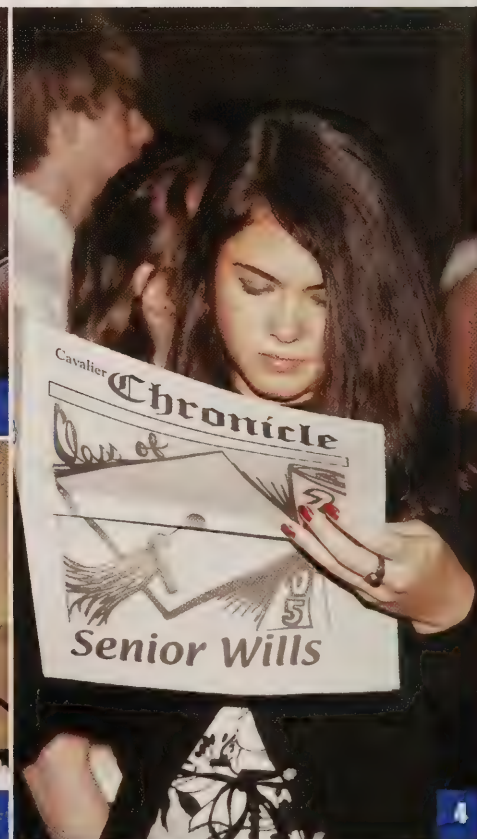

Senior Matt Zackon gave a toast to the Seniors, encouraging them to keep trying when times get rough, and to continue to press on, even when they are ready to give up. Senior Alex Sims gave a speech at the Math and Science banquet, which inspired many to pursue their goals and dreams.

1. Seniors Brad Shultz and Thomas Saunders look over the Senior Wills after the presentation of the Senior Slide Show.

2. Senior Alex Sims makes a speech at the Math and Science Banquet to encourage and inspire her fellow classmates.

3. Senior Matt Zackon raises his glass and gives a toast to the Class of 2005.

4. Senior Anna Howard reads the Cavalier Chronicle's Senior Wills, which gave seniors the chance to remember memories and inside jokes they made with their closest friends.

Let's Raise A Toast

seniors gather for one last time and toast to the future

As their last days of high school approached, the senior class gathered for one last time to reflect and look toward the future. The Senior Banquet was held on June 1st at the Holiday Inn Koger Center, and the Math and Science Banquet was held on May 22nd at the Jefferson Hotel. This event allowed seniors to gather outside of their daily class routine.

"The slide show brought back a lot of memories from my past. It was a great way to bring everyone together and share one last meeting as a class," said Senior Lindsay Baxter. Seniors cherished these banquets as times for reflection and nights to remember the memories they had made during their high school years. Senior Class Vice-President Matt Zackon made a toast to the future and President Liz Strine gave a speech. After a dinner provided by the hotel, seniors enjoyed a slideshow put together by Senior Class Historian Molly Tucker. They also received their Senior Last Will and Testament, produced by the Cavalier Chronicle. Seniors were given a last opportunity to make lasting memories with unforgettable friends.

GARIMA PRASAI

"The banquet was a great way to bring the last four years to a close. It was a great way to thank your teachers and tell your friends that you love them."

KRISTINA HAMILL

"I cried a lot. It was great to have everyone together for one last time."

Above: Seniors gathered before the banquet started. "The banquet was good ol' times with good ol' friends," said Senior TJ Kreckler. The banquet provided several opportunities for friends to create new memories with each other.

Right: Seniors enjoyed the food and fellowship provided by the Jefferson Hotel. "The banquet was a great time to reflect on high school," said Senior Ryan Early. Seniors enjoyed dinner and the fellowship of their closest friends.

Above: Senior girls posed for pictures as they waited for the doors to open at the Senior banquet. "I thought it was great for everyone to get together. The slideshow was amazing and it was great for the school to do something like that for us," said Senior Jessica Vandyke. The seniors came together to make these nights times to remember.

Dressed in their best and adorned with chords, medallions and tassels, the graduating class of 2005 proudly marched onto the floor of the VCU Stuart Seigel Center. This procession was much different from the chaotic graduation practice the evening before because now over six thousand pairs of eyes were gazing upon these seniors. Dr. Cannaday, the Superintendent of Chesterfield County Public Schools, began the ceremony with a few words of advice and encouragement. "We will need you as leaders of yourself and then of us," said Cannaday. As the speeches proceeded, Jonathan Chan, the representative of the Math and Science High School, urged his peers to set themselves apart from the definitions of society. "The reasonable man adapts himself to the world, and the unreasonable man makes the world adapt to him," said Chan. He then noted that his classmates should be unreasonable. The Salutatorian, Megan Schaedal, listed a plethora of wise statements to guide the graduates into the real world. "If you don't stand for something, then you'll fall for anything," said Schaedal. Sarah Siodmock then gave her Valedictory speech, reminding the graduates that they are capable of accomplishing anything. "People that think they are crazy enough to change the world are the ones that can do it. Class of 2005, we are the crazy people," said Siodmock. With the conclusion of this speech, the seniors then received their diplomas. After turning their tassels and tossing their caps, the Class of 2005 entered a new world of opportunity.

Original Rituals...

Before each game, all the players have different things they like to do to get themselves pumped up. Junior Kicker Mark Stevens listens to rock music and pictures himself kicking a field goal. Junior Richie Hinson eats potato wedges from Ukrops.

As a whole, the Varsity team prays before walking out on to the field.

1. Senior Jordan Zdanek takes a break to watch his team. "We are like a band of brothers. We have all grown up playing together." Zdanek, along with twenty other Seniors, ended the season successfully.

2. The offensive line led by Sophomore Will Rigganbach prepares to score a touchdown.

3. Seniors Chris Ryan and Danny von Schuch lead the defensive line as they try to hold back the Bulldogs.

4. Players huddle up and wait for Senior Quarterback Robbie Nickle to call the plays.

Every team has a tradition they participate in to pump themselves up before each game. The Varsity Football team had a record of six wins and four losses and a total of thirty-five touchdowns. The team was led by twenty-one seniors who worked hard to achieve that record. "We have worked to be where we are at," said Junior Richie Hinson. Every Thursday before a game, the team would hold a light practice and then the players would unwind and begin to focus on the game ahead of them at a team cookout. These cookouts offered the guys an opportunity to goof off and have fun before it was time to get serious about winning the upcoming game. Not only did these cookouts allow the football team to have fun, it also included a lot of team bonding. "All of us get along so well on and off the field, and I've become closer with a lot of the guys thanks to these cookouts," said Senior Josh Windom. The sense of unity on and off the field brought the team together during the games, bringing the boys to a successful season of 6-4.

To the Endzone

team asks for a little assistance before each game

"This season has been successful and I enjoyed playing on the Freshmen team."

Chris Broadnax

"I feel if we continue playing the way we have been, then our team will keep getting better."

George Hebert

"I think the Freshmen team is a good team because we had one of the best records of any Freshmen team."

Sean Cavanaugh

"I enjoyed my first year of football because my trust in the team helped me succeed."

Brandon Gilliland

Before a game was like the calm before a storm. The Freshmen and Junior Varsity players began to prepare for the task ahead of them: winning the game. The boys had their own way of preparing for the kick-off of the night. "Personally I imagine that I'm on Chris Berman's Top 10 Plays Of the Week on ESPN," said Sophomore Adam Ngeam. The down time before each game also signified a bonding period for the team. When it came down to the wire and the beginning of the game was nearing, the team gathered together and said the Lord's Prayer. This moment of complete unity was used to ask for some "assistance" before every game. This pre-game ritual helped bring out the best in the players on the field. The players were able to trust each other and play together. It was with this ability to not only play as a team, but also trust each other that the teams were able to succeed in their games. All it takes is one thing to help a team come out on top. It does not matter if the team has great plays or an awesome quarterback. If the players cannot trust each other, then they lose the ability to have a successful season.

Shannon Wallace and Lauren Boehnlein

"The thing that is best about our team is when one of us messes up, we know we can trust the others to pick each other up."

Don't Let the Skirt Fool You

hockey season ends with ticket to districts

In celebration of their tenth anniversary, Coach Donna Stables planned numerous activities that strengthened team unity and ultimately gave the girls heart for the game. On some game days, breakfasts took place in the classroom before school. The breakfasts pumped everyone up to take on their opponents later on in the day. Other times, the girls gathered on the weekends for bonding experiences, such as holding a lasagna dinner or a pancake breakfast. In addition, Junior Varsity and Varsity players participated in a little sister/big sister goodie bag exchange prior to every away game. "Our team grew really close as the season progressed based on our competitive spirits and love for the game," said Junior Saira Ahmed. Practices held every day after school ensured dedication to the sport and improvement in skill work. "Always move your feet," said Varsity Coach Donna Stables and Junior Varsity Coach Sandy Lawson during practices. When it was finally game time, the girls demonstrated that their determination and hard work had paid off. The Varsity team placed third in the district, while the Junior Varsity team ended the season with a winning record as well.

Serve It Like a Senior

seniors' experience brings strength to the team

"The thing I like best this year is our team structure and how tight knit the whole group is."

Greg Stafford

"I really enjoy the team camaraderie and being able to shut down any opposition we face."

Craig Cruse

"Even though Varsity is definitely a step up with the playing level, team unity and success is still a big part of the game."

Keith O'Donnell

"My favorite part about playing volleyball is the connection between J.V. and Varsity. No other team has a bond like we do."

Matt Zackon

Experience and unity are what lead a team to victory and with nine returning seniors, the Men's Varsity Volleyball team had the leadership they needed to maintain their title as Dominion District Champions. Throughout the season, seniors provided support and experience to the younger players on the team. "The leadership that the seniors bring to the team is awesome. The captains are always encouraging and supporting the rest of the team," said Senior Liz Strine, Manager of the Varsity team. The boys developed an excellent defense and since all of the players had the ability to score, it made for a well-rounded team. In an effort to gain the title as Virginia State Champions, the Varsity Volleyball team established a model for Junior Varsity players to follow and preserve. "I think they've influenced us a lot. They really encourage us to work harder and improve in our game," said Sophomore Jin Yoo. Years of experience and strong friendships allowed the Mens' Varsity Volleyball team to enjoy a successful season that included the titles of District and Regional Champions as well as making it all the way to the state finals.

Proud Crowd

increased success attracts more fans

With the growing success of the Girls' Volleyball team, cheering fans filled the stands at every game. Finishing second in the district, the Varsity team's consistent victories attracted the attention of numerous students. As a new strategy, the players decided on team goals which strengthened their focus and determination during games. The girls constantly pumped each other up on the court in order to stay pepped and confident. "We understand each other's strengths and weaknesses, so we knew exactly how to cheer each other up," said Senior Brittany Burhop. Many of the girls have developed this type of family over the four years of playing on the team together. On the other hand, the Junior Varsity team approached their season with several new players along with a new coach. "Even with so many new teammates, everyone became a major asset to this volleyball team, and we won because we played together as a team," said Sophomore Kellyn Cunningham, co-captain of the Junior Varsity team. The Varsity players left a high standard for the girl's volleyball team, for the increased success and support from students was surely something to be proud of.

Emily Gray and Carey Capek

"My favorite part of the team this year was the Clover Hill Open. It really helped us prepare for our upcoming season."

Logan Vidal

"The golf team was a good experience for me because I met a lot of good friends."

James Jones

"I am really proud of all my teammates. We worked hard this year and it definitely paid off."

Chris Lindquist

Through unity, team spirit, and hard work the golf team had a successful season. The team played above average, strived to achieve their goals, held extensive practices, and kept a steady work ethic. The players dedication allowed them to obtain the title of Dominion District Regular Season Champions. "We were united, everyone enjoyed playing with each other, we challenged ourselves, and believed in our team mates abilities," said Junior Steven McDowell. The golf team prepared for thier upcoming season by competing against one another in the Clover Hill Open, a practice tournament. The golf team finished their regular season with a final record of 15-2-1. The team aslo placed third in the Central Regional Tournament proving that practice makes perfect. In addition, Chris Menster, Zach Frick, Chris Olson, and Chris Lindquist were selected to the All-District All-Academic Team, and Chris Olson was selected to the Region All-Academic Team. With new found confidence and determination the golf team enhanced their level of play by increasing thier competitive edge.

Many people don't know when the different types of clubs are used. Drivers are used for tee shots. Fairway woods are used for longer approach shots. Irons are used for the shorter approach shots. Wedges are for shots around the green.

1. Sophomore Chris Olson is concentrating intensely as he swings the club. "We really challenged ourselves this year, allowing us to perform well." He continued to receive good scores throughout the season.

2. Sophomore James Jones tees off in style.

3. Junior Chris Lindquist hits the ball out of the bunker.

4. Sophomore Zach Frick chips the ball toward the hole.

Above: The Golf Team coaches and assistants intently watch the competition and keep score. "We had a good year because we won districts. The addition of Assistant Coach Jamie Bird to the cross country team gave the runners new inspiration. Coach Chris Averill and Coach Bird worked together to create a new kind of team. Goals were set higher, runners ran farther, and the team pushed themselves harder than ever before. Different from last season, the men's and women's teams ran together in practice. This new coed practice routine fostered unity between the two teams. "My favorite part about being on the team was the companionship of the runners," said Junior Brian Seal. The team effectively unified for a successful season. Captains for the women's team included Jessie Goodman, Emily Koon, and Megan Kohut. Captains for the men's team included Joe Lighthiser, Roshan George, and Brad Bell. Both teams practiced diligently in preparation for their District competitions. The men's team ran hard for a third place win at districts, and the women's team pushed themselves for their fifth place win. The new practice regimen allowed the runners to grow individually as well as a team. All in all, the addition of Coach Bird and the hard work of the whole team made for a victorious season.

Rachel Noble

"Performing at the games gives us a chance to show off all the hard work we have put into our routines."

Teri Dulong-Rae

Color Guard began preparing for success even before the football season started. While most students were still enjoying their summer vacations, the girls of the Color Guard were enduring three long weeks of camp. "Camp is really hot and tedious, but in the end it paid off. We have a lot of really good girls on the squad this year, and I'm proud of them," said Senior Sarah Michalowski. Along with the more rigorous practice schedule and longer hours, a new theme was another addition. Instead of a traditional, formal look, their uniforms evolved into a more relaxed and laid-back style. The new changes were all a result of their highly anticipated performance in the Caribbean. Even with the harder practices and additional changes to their routines, the girls' enthusiasm remained untouched. Game after game, they continued to keep the crowd entertained. The squad's dedicated work ethic proved to be the deciding factor for a successful year.

"I love performing. It makes me feel good to support my school and it makes me feel even better to know that I am supported."

Original Trips...

Over the past four years, the marching band has gone to many places to compete. In 2001, they went to London for the New Year's Parade and were awarded the Commonwealth of Virginia Honor Band in 2002. They performed at Walt Disney World in 2003, and in 2004 they went to the Dan River Festival of Bands.

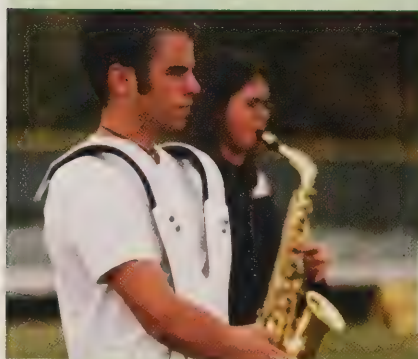

1. Practicing for the upcoming cruise, Sophomore Sarah Faszewski keeps the beat steady on her bass drum. "I'm really looking forward to the cruise because my family is coming with me and we get to perform in the Bahamas, which is a great opportunity," said Faszewski. The drumline plays an important part in keeping the rhythm for the rest of the band.

2. Three flute players show off their skills while playing for the crowd at the pep rally.

3. Senior trumpet player, Krista Lepire, performs at halftime at a home game with the rest of the marching band.

4. Junior baton twirler, Emily Myers, focuses on her routine before a big game.

"Being in the drumline prepared me for the physical rigors that I will encounter in the special forces."

Cruisin' Caribbean

hard practices lead to superior performances

With their new Caribbean theme, band students proudly marched onto the football field with their floral shirts and fresh Caribbean music. The inspiration for the theme came from the cruise to the Bahamas that they went on over Spring Break. In addition to being invited to perform on the cruise, marching band students were awarded many other crowning achievements. The most impressive accomplishment was receiving a superior rating at the State Marching Band Festival. It was the third time they had ever received the superior rating. They were even recognized at an awards ceremony at the VBODA State Marching Band Festival. "Planning for our performance cruise to the Bahamas has been an extremely challenging task. I am so proud at the level of performance that our Marching Cavaliers have demonstrated this year. I am eagerly awaiting the opportunity to showcase our students in Nassau," said marching band director, Mr. Steve Conley. The band also participated in the annual Richmond Christmas Parade. From their first experience playing on a cruise, to their high band awards, the marching band succeeded in reaching their goals.

Jennifer Montrose and Christina Choi

"It was a lot of work but it was worth it because we get to go on a cruise."

Greg Akselrod

"Marching band was a great time to get together and party with friends while still doing a school activity."

Kathleen Campbell

"It was a lot of work but it was worth it in the end when we got a superior rating at the Festival."

Aaron Douberly

"We are able to bond because we work toward a common goal, which in reality is the cruise."

Elizabeth Andrews

All members of the Marching Band gather after school on the band field to practice for their upcoming halftime performance at the regularly scheduled Friday night football games. "Having hard practices all year also helped to earn us our Virginia Honor Band status," said Sophomore Samantha Smelley. The performance of the Marching Band on and off the field helped them to win many honors throughout the year.

players find comfort in unity

"My most memorable moment was beating Manchester in triple overtime."

Melvin Jones

"I really like learning from the older players. We've got great team chemistry."

Scooter Renkin

"This year has been really exciting. It was great that the team came together to win."

Adam Mehrer

"Any time the team is doing something together, it is beneficial because they are getting to know each other."

Coach Ron Carr

"There is no 'I' in team"- a cliché often used but rarely taken seriously. The Varsity team wasn't just a team of talented players, hand-picked by the coach; it was a group of friends working together to achieve a successful season. The team felt more unified than ever before. These friendships were present both on and off the court. The Varsity players held many out of school outings and enjoyed several team lunches. Before each game, Senior Chris Connell would pump up the team with an exciting speech, motivating them to be victorious. "I just try to help them have some emotion and give them something more to play for than just to win," said Connell. The team pushed themselves through strenuous drills, numerous practices, and heart-pumping games. "Everyone kept practicing and giving their all, improving the team as a whole," said Senior DJ Short. Coach Ron Carr also noticed that the players had formed a bond with each other. "I think the team has had to overcome a lot, losing DJ Short to an injury, and the adversity has brought them together," said Carr. The Varsity team finished the season with 6 wins and several new friendships.

Chris Nicosia and Liz Letchford

"This season has brought a lot of exciting memories that I will never forget."

Original Plan...

Tension was high before every game. The players each had a different and unique way to prepare. Some would calm their nerves by listening to their favorite CD, while others would spend some quiet time visualizing the game ahead.

1. The varsity team puts their hands in for one last moment of encouragement before the buzzer signals game time. "We made great strides this year and came together as a team," said Senior Tim Clark. The team continued to strengthen their bonds throughout the season.

2. Freshman Scooter Renkin lines up the ball before taking a shot at the basket.

3. Senior DJ Short warms up prior to the start of a game.

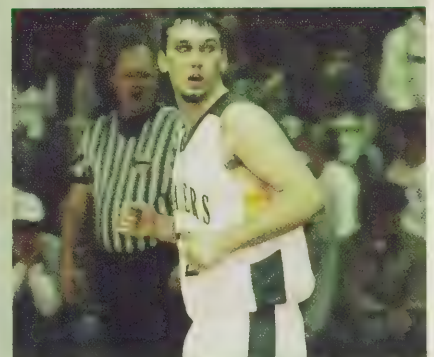

4. While attempting to make his way to the basket, Senior Tim Clark fakes out an opponent.

The varsity players listen as Coach Ronn Carr explains game tactics during a timeout. "Game by game we just kept on making improvements," said Senior Keith Allen. The team had less than a minute to discuss their plan before getting back out on the court.

Basketball is a sport that always includes a healthy population of tall athletes. The Men's Junior Varsity team only had three players that reached six foot or more, while Men's Varsity team only had four team members under six foot. Although some must look up to others, an extra inch or two proves vital for sinking the winning dunk.

Original Inches...

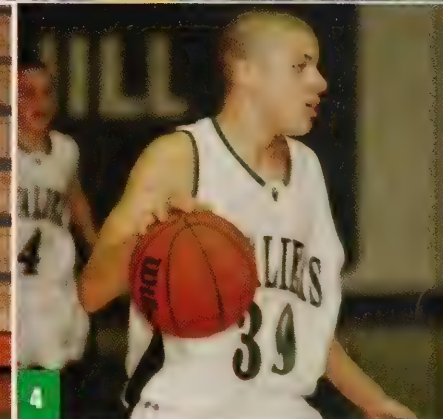

1. Sophomore Ben Jessee points out a hole in the opponent's defense. "I try inform others of an opening so that the ball can be passed a lot," said Jessee. An efficient use of team mates proved to be an effective strategy.

2. Pushing to get the upperhand, Sophomore Kieth O'Donnell exerts himself to gain control of this jumpball.

3. In need of a fellow teammate, Sophomore Logan Moore looks to complete an overhead pass with a teammate.

4. In the heat of the game, Freshman Tyren Johns dribbles confidently as he navigates the best route through a sea of defenders.

Reaching for the rebound, Sophomore Stephen Shaefer jumps up i attempts to gain ball control. "Being tall has always had its advantages for me, especially this year." Height seems to be an adequate advantage many athletes have going for them.

Merely an orange blur streaked down the court, as the ball changed hands before it became airbourne. As it sank into the victorious ivory trimmed hoop, the buzzer sounded and the scoreboard lit up two more points for our boys. Talent of the young JV athletes shaped our boys into up-and-coming Varsity hot-shots. Activity on the court prompted friendships among players. "I feel like we all play together with ease because we get along so well on and off the court," said Sophomore Will Coleman. There were many different experiences that augmented unity of the team. On game night, a pasta dinner was held that got everyone psyched to play their best afterwards. Team members even got a break from the strict demands of practice when Coach surprised them with a field trip to a local bowling alley where bonding continued. The skills learned during the season were more than just how to improve accuracy of passing or layup techniques; our boys gained experience in terms of how the game was mastered as well as a lesson in friendship and comradery.

With a young squad, the girls' Varsity Basketball team pulled together to create a winning season. With the majority of the team composed of Sophomores and Juniors, the age factor did not play a hindering part in the talent and determination the squad had throughout the season. To get pumped up for each game, the team continued to pray before they took the court and also listened to the radio on the bus ride to away games. "The level of intensity has increased due to the combined enthusiasm to win as a team," said Junior Taylor Muniz. Unity also enhanced the teamwork and friendship of the girls. "We stuck together, and we have a lot of intensity this year," said Sophomore Nicole Champ. The girls' team ended the season with 9 wins and 10 losses. "It's been a much improved year and we've been more competitive," said Coach Wharman. Through hard work, discipline, and close friendships, the girls' Varsity Basketball team achieved a high level of competitive performance.

Basketball season started off with some fierce competition from the Women's Junior Varsity basketball team. The sense of competition among the girls showed as the Junior Varsity basketball team practiced hard and played well game after game. Daily practices started with suicides and always ended with plenty of water refills. To warm up the team, drills such as sprints were enforced to increase the speed of the players. Come game time, the basketball players showed their domination with layups, freethrows, and impressive shots. As a final season score of 11-6, the Junior Varsity players showed what they were made of. "Being on the basketball team was very fun and I enjoyed every second of the season. I learned a lot from Coach Koscinski and Coach Jones. The team was very supportive and I love each and every one of them," said Freshman Caroline Harman. The teammates continued to bond after practices and games. Sleepovers, cookouts, and a trip out to dinner were held at the end of the season. The hard work, determination, and sense of accomplishment pulled the players through a successful season.

men's wrestling overcomes losing many key wrestlers

Patrick Dunham

"We are a team of winners, and winners push themselves to be great."

Steven McDowell

"All season we trained hard, determined to be the best. After four years, we beat James River to capture the district."

Kevin Rouse

Two months before the season even began, Junior Varsity and Varsity wrestlers were already working hard to secure a successful season. Through vigorous training and conditioning, wrestlers enhanced their performance in order to fill the positions that were vacated by the Seniors who graduated last year. "We lost 10 starting Seniors and many people have had to step up," said Senior Chris Alexander. All of the team's conditioning eventually paid off for them. "We are definitely a force to be reckoned with. We all practiced hard, and you get what you put in, so we expected these results. We expected to go far within the district," said Sophomore Brandon McGuire. The Varsity Team was named the Dominion District Champions for the regular season; they were also named Tournament District Champions, and the majority of the wrestlers qualified to wrestle in the Regional Tournament. Coach Mike Stefanko was named the Dominion District Coach of the Year. Although losing many starters may have negatively affected other teams, each wrestler contributed time and effort to make the team a success.

Original Motivation...

Before each indoor track meet, the team gets together and listens to music to pump themselves up and prepare themselves for their upcoming meets. The women's relay team also gathers around the baton before each relay and says a prayer together. These traditions helped the team prepare for success before each meet.

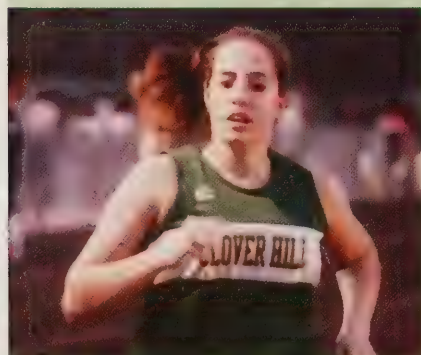

1. Junior Brian Seal competes in a relay at an indoor track meet. "Indoor track keeps me in shape and gets me ready for the outdoor season," said Seal. Many runners used this season as a chance to continue competing while practicing their skills.

2. Senior Brad Bell is ahead of the competition as he secures a win for the team.

Despite a young team on both the women's and men's side, the indoor track athletes proved to be hard working and dedicated. The few experienced seniors were able to guide the younger team, and were leaders for the team. Though the team was smaller this year, they illustrated their various talents. Meets varied in location from Christopher Newport University to the Arthur Ashe Center in downtown Richmond. "Many students participate in indoor track to prepare for the outdoor track season," said Junior Jacob Robertson. Indoor track allowed athletes to practice for the spring outdoor track season, while still competing against teams from all around the county. The team also used practices and meets to bond as a group and hang out with their friends. Before each meet, the team gathered and listened to various music to pump each other up and prepare themselves for the upcoming races. The women's relay team also held the baton and said a prayer. The young but talented team showed that dedication and perserverance lead to an outstanding success.

One, Two Step

a diverse twist leads to team enthusiasm

"We have overcome a lot, from fights, to losses, to complete and utter madness at times, but despite it all, we're still here."

Nora Chatmon

"Step Team is like using your body as a percussion instrument to express a song of unity, strength, and happiness."

Anasa Jennings

"Despite all the obstacles, in the end the work paid off, and I treasure the time I have spent with the team in the last three years."

Allyson Hix

"Bonding and integrating into such a tight knit group taught me to value friendship. I feel these other members are my brothers and sisters."

Lisa Peou

A unique twist of the Step Team only added to their overall unity and determination. As a team, members of the Step Team learned to look beyond the physical appearance of their teammates and focus on the general success of the team. With a variety in genders, races, and now team uniforms, the team learned to conform to their fellow steppers' thoughts and recommendations on fresh moves. "I think having a diverse group of people in Step brings a more unique style, and it gives us a chance to learn from each other and have more fun," said Senior Emily Propert. Each member of the team appeared to benefit from the other teammates' advice and opinions. In addition to their diverse personalities, the Step Team also added a twist to their previous uniforms. Unlike past years, the team, as a whole, decided on various uniforms depending on their performance. By choosing their own outfits, the Step Team was able to freely express itself not only in its routine, but also in its physical aspects. Ranging from Freshmen to Seniors, and girls to boys, members of the Step Team worked together as one to create a unified team with many different specialties, and a chaotic excitement.

Rachel Hoagland and Amber DeAngelo

"Being on CHAOS for the last 4 years has given me a sense of confidence and drive to become the best."

~ Krista Winant

Krista, what is your most memorable moment?

Senior Night was my most memorable night. After a culmination of 3 years of work, it was a great feeling to be recognized by my peers.

Krista, how has the diversity of the Step Team further unified it as one?

More diversity means more ideas and ways of performing, which helps us come together and unify as one.

With their game faces on, the Step Team waits to begin the performance. "I like how the team is one big family and everyone is friends with everyone else," said Freshman Holly Meadows. Due to their tight relationships, the Step Team delivered an exemplary performance to the crowd of students and faculty.

Original Difference...

Unlike past years, a new change in characteristics overtook the Step Team. The male to female ratio of previous years was higher, but as Seniors graduated and former members quit, there became an increase in the quantity of females. Though there may be more females than males, the Step Team stuck to its fierce and enthusiastic attitude towards the sport.

1. Breaking it down to a mix of hip hop tunes, Senior Johanna Sakponou and Freshman Nella Deaza pump up the crowd while executing their routine.

2. After an amazing act, members of the Step Team have fun with their teammates. "Step Team has taught me teamwork is an important and necessary key to success in any goal," said Junior Kady Salmon. Through both competitions and game performances, the team formed many new friendships and grew together as a family.

3. Members of the Step Team enjoy getting all classes hyped for the Pep Rally.

4. Performing at halftime, the Step Team amuses the audience with their skills at the Varsity basketball game.

Jessica, what is your most memorable moment of the year?

Performing at the Pep Rally. It is usually hot, and this year it was so cold that it stung to clap our hands.

Jessica, how has the diversity of the Step Team further unified it as one?

It makes us strive to be better than the teams that make fun of our diversity.

"Because of the growth of our team, we have become much stronger and louder because of our size."

~ Jessica Duvall

Their nerves already pumping with anticipation, the Varsity cheerleading squad was faced with a new obstacle at the District Final competition. Moments before competing, Sophomore Jessica Smith broke her arm, leaving the team to recreate much of their routine. Despite this surprising incident, the girls managed to boost their pride and receive a third place trophy.

Original Change...

1. During halftime at the JV basketball game, cheerleaders entuse the crowd with their thrilling performance. "I've enjoyed cheering for high school and growing closer with the JV team," said Freshman Alie Zone. The cheerleaders used the weekly games to illustrate their continuous support for both the school and each other.

2. Equipped with their endless spirit, the Varsity squad perfects their stunt to an audience of students.

3. The Junior Varsity squad excites the crowd by nailing their routine with a smile.

4. The Varsity cheering squad practices to perfect their stunt- ing during a typical afternoon practice.

"Never give up and always follow your heart!"

~Senior Meagan Baker

Meagan, how has being one of the only two Seniors on the team affected you?

It allowed me to be a leader and set good examples.

How has the team further united to become successful?

With a young squad, we pulled together and did the best we could; however, the squad was strong, and I believe in the future they will continue to get stronger.

JUNIOR VARSITY CHEERLEADING: First Row: Mallory Keen, Amy Kirkland, Alie Zone, Jessica Castle, Lindsay Harney. Second Row: Alyse Adams, Caitlin Baker, Ryan Crawford, Jessica Harney, Betsy Moller, Krista Walquist.

More than just loud chants and tumbling, cheerleading is a sport based solely on teamwork and determination. Throughout the season, cheerleaders on both the Junior Varsity and Varsity squads sought team unification to aid them in a successful season. It took cooperation of both the bodies and minds of the girls to create an accomplished team. "The girls were really focused and determined to be the best. We spent so much time together practicing that we became one big family," said Junior Megan Cox. Though many cheerleaders were lost last year due to graduation, the addition of new members only created an opportunity for the two squads to reach out to their new teammates. This family-like bond within the squads allowed cheerleaders to have fun while working hard. Their friendships were evident throughout the season, as their consistent spirit displayed their enjoyment with the sport, as well as with each other. Their ability to pump up the crowd at the multiple football and basketball games proved that it's not the glitz of the uniform that matters, but the spirit that lies within.

Rachel Hoagland and Amber DeAngelo

"Cheerleading is hard work, but with a great squad it was a good experience for my first year in high school."

Krista Walquist

"Homecoming was a lot of fun for Varsity because we have all grown closer as a squad."

Brittany Hooper

"JV Cheerleading was a great experience for my freshman year."

Ryan Crawford

"Cheerleading isn't just about flips and yelling. It's about making friends, having fun, and doing what I love to do."

Tori, how has being one of the only two Seniors on the team affected you?

It was fun because there were only two of us, so the team went all out to make us feel important.

How has the team further united to become successful?

Of all my years cheering, this has been the closest team I have ever been on. We were like one big family!

"Even though we were a young team, we pulled together and worked really hard. They are a group of very talented girls and will perform very well in the future!"

~Senior Tori Hall

Everybody Dance Now

cavalettes are able to form stronger bonds due to their smaller size

"I'm sometimes nervous when I perform but now that this is my second year, I'm becoming more confident."

Meg Lawman

"This has definitely been the best season we have had and the most fun. Everybody got along so well."

Julia Niculescu

"Practice is always a fun time for me when I can learn new dances and be with my fellow Cavalettes."

Katie Hundley

"My first year with Cavalettes was a good opportunity to show my talent to the school along with the other girls."

Rachel Dallman

Starting out a fresh new season, Cavalettes brought a close knit team to the scene. Because of the team's smaller size, they were able to get to know each other better and form strong bonds. "I really liked being on Cavalettes because of our friendships and the fact that everyone looked out for one another. I liked knowing that the girls could cheer me up even if I'd had a bad day," said Sophomore Katie Peng. The girls formed very close relationships with one another and really got to know each other personally. Also, by knowing each other better, they were able to mesh well together and perform to the best of their ability. Having a smaller team of dancers also brought more attention to each girl's never ending creativity. Since all the girls helped out and voiced their opinions, their dances became more diverse and unique. "All the girls worked really hard and put a lot of time into making the dances look good," said Junior Kelley Simpson. Each dance had the input of every girl, giving the team a certain punch. The Cavalettes effectively worked together and defined the saying, "The whole of a team is greater than the sum of its parts."

Chelsea Sligh and Sarah Michalowski

"I love being a Cavalette and performing at the games in front of my peers. Also, being a captain for Cavalettes is fun because I get to represent my school well."

~Ashley Narvaez

Ashley, what do you think about the team being a smaller size this season?

"I like the fact that we're smaller because you get to know the girls a lot better."

Ashley, how do you feel about being a captain this season?

"Being a captain makes me feel like I have accomplished something I love to do."

Original Dedication...

Cavalettes practice every Tuesday and Thursday after school and are very dedicated to their routines and friends on the team. But for most girls their dedication doesn't stop with Cavalettes. More than half of the girls on the team dance two to six hours a week with their own dancing companies.

1. During the homecoming parade the team takes a ride around the track on their float.

2. After the pep rally, Cavalettes pose for a picture with their fellow dance partners. "Pep rally is always the best time of the season. Dancing with the football players adds a twist to our normal routine," said Junior Kori Hundley. The girls put a lot of work into their routine at the pep rally.

3. Junior Shannon Kesler performs her best during their routine for homecoming parade.

4. While performing in the pep rally, the girls have fun shaking their money makers and strutting their stuff.

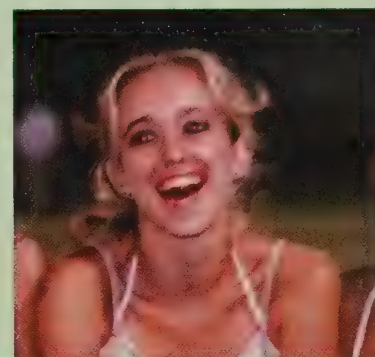

The girls take time from practicing to listen to their senior captains, Ashley Narvaez and Courtney DeMaria. "Dancing is hard work but with these girls Cavalettes is way worth it," said Junior Brittany Gambardella. The girls took time off from their busy schedule to perfect their routines every Tuesday and Thursday after school.

Courtney, what do you think about the team being a smaller size this season?

"It's easier to work with because you bond with the team as a whole instead of individual cliques."

Courtney, how do you feel being a captain this season?

"It's something I've been looking forward to for three years. It's really fulfilling."

"My favorite part is spending time with my teammates and watching the team come together at competition and performances."

~Courtney DeMaria

Original Records...

The Men's Varsity Soccer team placed first in the Dominion District along with winning the District Tournament for the third year in a row, setting a record for the most consecutive district titles. In addition to this, Coach Anderson celebrated his two-hundredth win of his coaching career with the Cavs.

1. Junior Nick Ott prepares for a mighty kick to send the ball over the L.C. Bird players' heads. "All of us played our hardest throughout the whole year and I am proud of our season. I love these boys," said Ott. The Varsity defense recorded seven shut outs in district season matches.

2. Pumped up by the screaming fans, Sophomore Adam Blake pushes through his exhaustion to lead the Cavs to another victory.

3. Freshman Kevin Anderson and Sophomore Robert Semus intensely watch for a possible header.

4. Posing with his parents on Senior Night, Senior Austin Keller is recognized for his talent and leadership.

"Even though I wasn't on the field as much due to injury, being a captain was a great experience and it helped my leadership skills grow."

As both the Junior Varsity and Varsity Men's soccer teams entered their seasons, they stepped up to the challenge of incorporating new players and young talent into the game plan. Even though many of the sophomore and junior players had previous experience on Varsity, they exhibited a higher role since there were only four senior players. Because most of the players were freshmen, Junior Varsity was essentially a new team. To overcome this, Coaches Mike Anderson and David Seibert worked together to mold the skills and strengths of each player into powerful teams. Some of the teams' successes included Junior Varsity's twelve shut outs and Varsity's claim of the District title over a gruesome match against L.C. Bird. Varsity then shut out Maggie Walker in the quarter-final regional tournament as their first encounter ever with this opponent. Going out with dignity, the Varsity team fought their way up to the semi-final regional tournament. After long practices in the sun, dirty games in the rain and exciting wins in overtime, the Men's soccer teams were victorious through their perserverence and teamwork.

Maggie McFadden

"This past year was so much fun hanging out before games and making new friends. It was definitely a memorable season."

Whitney McKenzie

"It was a great year, and we were lucky to have had so many returning players. That helped us reach many of our goals."

The Girl's Varsity Soccer Team had 16 shut out games this season, ranking them 5th in the nation. The girls defeated Manchester in the Dominion District Finals, landing them the opportunity to go to States. The team consisted of many talented players, including 9 returning seniors. Seven of the girls played on a Dominion District Team, five made an All-Regional team and three made the All-State Team. "We had an amazing team this year and I think it's glorious that so many people were recognized for their hard work and dedication," said Dominion District Player of the Year Junior Kristin Stannard. The team had the support of family, friends, and teammates all the way through the season. The Varsity team set the example for the upcoming JV players. "The Varsity players have all inspired me to work hard and play as a team," said JV player Katelyn Freda. At the end of the season the varsity girls came out as the Dominion District regular season and tournament champions, and also went on and advanced to the regional semifinals, where they fell to Godwin. The JV and Varsity girls worked together to make this season another success.

Varsity tennis players greatly anticipated their victories and showed a drive for success as they swept the courts and won the Dominion District title. With new leadership this year, the players responded positively to the change in game plans. Coach Jim Albertson led the team for the first year into numerous wins. The team bonding also helped boost the morale of the entire tennis team. From bus rides, to games, to practices every day after school, the boys gained a sense of understanding with each other. Because of the strong unity within the teammates, they had a very successful season. Upperclassmen also brought the team together by helping freshmen with the transition from middle school sports to the new experience of high school sports. "It has been fun easing into high school sports with such great teammates and leadership among the upperclassmen," said Freshman Marshall Hatfield. The Varsity tennis team served up a final overall record of 14-1, managing to finish with an undefeated district title. As Dominion District Champions, the men's tennis team held a district record of 11-0, proving their hard work and dedication successful.

Anne Longerbeam and Kenzie Lockie

For the Love of the Game

change in season has no effect on players' passion

"I have played with all of the seniors for so long, and I am really going to miss them next year."

Megan Shepherd

A new playing season in the spring changed the players preparation, but did not alter their desire to play the game. The team had to overcome the loss of players due to their involvement in other spring sports. "I am so proud of the effort our team has put forth this year. Everyone helped to contribute to such a positive atmosphere and we were very strong because of it," said Junior Christina Giaimo. The adjustment proved to be a success when the girls finished with a winning season. "As much as I love to goof off and have fun, I'm really competitive and I love just getting out there and pulling off a close match," said Senior Brittany Stevens. With a strong number of returning players, the team was able to build upon the bond that they had last year. The team united and was able to encourage and support each other. Despite drastic compromises, the team was able to show their love and passion for the game of tennis and finish the season strong.

"My favorite part about being on the team was being around all the girls and establishing friendships."

Christine Moehling

"We've been working well together this year, trying to make it the best year possible for our seniors."

The boys on both Junior Varsity and Varsity spend close to 15 to 20 hours a week playing baseball. However, they do not limit themselves to the school team. Many of the players play baseball all year round, whether it's for AAU or fall ball or just playing a casual game with friends. Also, numerous players have played since little league and continue their dedication to the sport to this day.

playing together for numerous years brings great unity

With many of the boys, on both Junior Varsity and Varsity, playing together for the past few years their relationships have become stronger. Along with building relationships, the players have shown a significant amount of unity during their practice, games, and tournaments. Many of the boys playing together over the years has also formed strong bonds between them in and outside of the playing field. By being able to form these bonds, the boys know each other very well and can read what each will do during the game, which has proved to extend their successes. "Working with the coaching staff and my teammates brings me a great sense of pride and fun on the baseball field because I've worked with these guys for a lot of my years playing ball so it feels more like a family than just another team," said Junior Matt Tiller. The Junior Varsity and Varsity baseball teams are examples of success through team unity and brotherhood. The evidence proves this through their numerous wins and their extreme focus as a team. With a combination of both unity and the feeling of a family, the boys bring a new meaning to the phrase, "There's no I in the word team."

Chelsea Sligh and Christina Cade

Maria Rodriguez

The arrival of springtime meant that it was time for outdoor activities and sports to begin. The Varsity and Junior Varsity softball teams also brought along new faces with the warm weather. Assistant Varsity Coach Bevel, a former army sergeant, added another source of encouragement and structure for the Lady Cavaliers. Midseason, Freshmen Whitney Haller and Katy Somerville, who were originally Junior Varsity players, were given the opportunity to show off their softball skills when they were added to the roster of the Varsity team. Throughout the season the girls worked hard to make the new players feel welcome on the field. "It was awesome being pulled up as a freshman and being a part of finally making it to Districts. The best part was being able to share it with my sister for her last year," said Freshman Whitney Haller. A strong sense of team unity could be seen through the teams' solid records. That unity and team spirit paid off when for the first time in eleven years, the Varsity team earned a spot to play in the Dominion District tournament. "Being a part of the first team to make it to Districts in eleven years was so exciting. We worked so hard to get as far as we did," said Junior Beth Allen.

Kendra Grinnage and Christina Choi

"It was a great opportunity to make it to Districts our senior year. It's a shame we didn't make it farther, but it was a great run."

Original Workout...

As a way of preparing for multiple meets, both the Men's and Women's Outdoor Track teams participated in a grueling workout. Once a season, the teams performed twenty 100 meter sprints with only small breaks in between. This workout allowed teammates to build their strength and endurance as well as individual and team confidence.

1. Members of the Women's Outdoor Track team socialize while stretching prior to their upcoming races. "I've really made amazing friendships through track; whether it's warming up for a meet or running, it gives us time to catch up on the day," said Sophomore Kayla Siwiec. The track team utilized their breaks between various races to re-energize and grow strong friendships with other runners.

2. Sophomore Colin Granger prepares to hand off the baton to his fellow teammates in the 800 meter relay.

3. Senior Nick Johnson quickly advances in the 800 meter race to score more points for his team.

4. Sophomore Jaimie Jerabek and Freshman Chanell York pace themselves to defeat the Monacan Chiefs in the second meet of the season.

Not only does an increase in number enable a team to have a greater opportunity for success, but it also provides for a more united and enthusiastic group of teammates. As opposed to previous years, both the Men's and Women's Outdoor Track teams grew significantly in size. With this strengthening in number came the strengthening of the team as a whole. The men's and women's teams united both as individual teams as well as a single representative of the school as a whole. Because practices and meets incorporated both the male and female teams together, members were able to interact through warm-ups, various races, and the constant anticipation experienced during the lengthy competition. "Our team size has influenced many members, including myself, to work harder and compete at an even higher level than before," said Junior Brian Seal. The consistent development of multiple friendships also allowed for greater enthusiasm and cooperation. Teammates illustrated their support for one another by deafening cheers and rumbling bleachers. These actions guided various runners across the finish line with pride. By relying on each other, members of the Men's and Women's Outdoor Track teams raced through a successful season with a smile.

english department

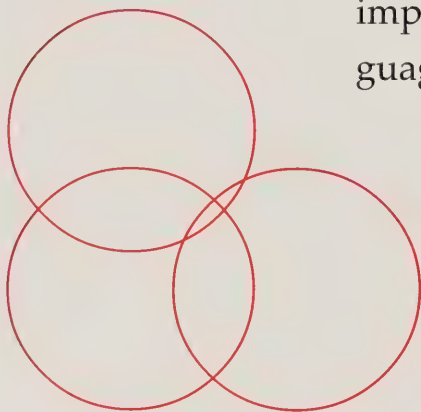

Ms. Prince shows her class a newspaper relating to their studies.

The collaborative efforts of the teachers in the English Department enhanced students' overall performances in this core subject. The teachers often shared ideas and materials, and their efforts aided students by helping them become better writers and improve their abilities in language arts.

In the Science Department, teachers strove to convey a deeper appreciation of the many aspects of Science. Earth Science, Chemistry and Physics were just a few of the courses offered in this department. These classes gave students a better understanding of scientific concepts through hands on labs and class discussions.

Metal band Go Get Your Gun performs at a local show. "Performing is a way to let yourself go from your normal inhibitions," said Senior lead vocalist Matt Fottrell. Go Get Your Gun had the opportunity to play many shows in the Richmond area.

Battle of our Bands

Being involved with music is a major aspect of many students' lives outside of school. "It's the thing that keeps you going during the week to know that a show is on the weekend," said Junior Michael Gray. Whether it is forming their own bands and performing at local venues or just playing with some friends for the fun of it, many students have found music as an outlet in life.

You Know You're a Cavalier When...

1. You get an extra early release day because of the annual power outage.
2. You know that the "pit" is a place to park your car.
3. You're able to attend two classes at once because sound carries through the thin metal walls.
4. You can listen to a whole CD while waiting in traffic to get out of the parking lot onto Hull Street Road.
5. There is never a lack of green and gold in the stands, because fans follow our sports teams around the state.
6. You are able to go outside for a breath of fresh air as you walk to one of the twenty trailer classrooms that provide a solution for the over-crowding.
7. You can count on excellence in education, as seen in our national accreditation.
8. You have to dress in layers to accommodate for the changing temperatures, as each wing of the school feels like a different season.
9. You are encouraged everyday to "make it a great day or not," and you know that "the choice is always yours."
10. You display your green and gold with pride, and are proud of what makes our school unique.

A Helping Hand

On December 26th, 2004, a massive tsunami struck Southeast Asia. Thousands of devastated survivors were without food or shelter. The disaster prompted an immediate worldwide response. Millions of people from all over the world came together to help with different relief funds. Many local organizations generously collected money, food, and clothing for the tsunami victims.

Liz Letchford

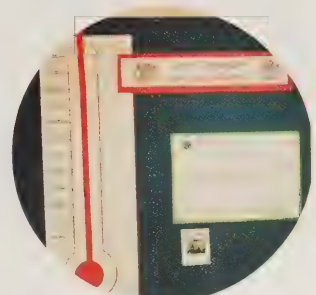

Senior Paul Shin donates to SADD's relief fund. "Because I am so lucky to be safe, I feel it is my place to help out the tsunami victims," said Shin. The proceeds of SADD's fund went to UNICEF.

• Total worldwide donations
as of Winter 2005 : $ 5.2 billion

• SADD's total donations : $3,100

Ukrop's set up a collection box for clothing and water to aid the Christian Children's Fund.

Clover Hill Elementary School held fundraisers to collect money for the Save the Children fund.

SADD set up a table at lunches, encouraging students to help "Lend A Hand" to Tsunami Victims.

Donation for a Nation

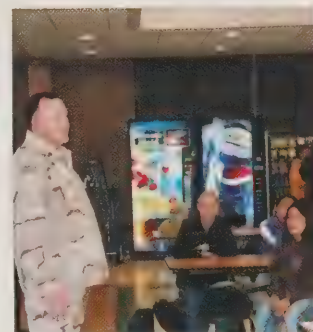

Interact and Red Cross Club put together a drive to gather donations for the soldiers fighting overseas. Students brought in toiletries and non-perishable foods to send to Iraq and Kuwait with Mr. Tom Parker, an APS teacher who is currently stationed in Kuwait. Mr. Kyle Remppies first period German class collected the most items for the drive and was rewarded with a breakfast, compliments of Ukrop's.

Boy's Night Out

Sophomores Stephen Phillips, Lucas Fritz, and Neil VonPelt enjoy each other's company at a "Black and White Party" inspired by the hit reality show Laguna Beach.

Whether it was spending the night playing video games, or going out to the movies, boys spent their free-time in various ways. The growing popularity of "poker nights" added a new twist to weekend activities. Different options allowed boys to spend their weekends to fit their own definition of fun.

● Rachel Hoagland

As opposed to standing in line, Junior Jeremy Soles purchases his movie ticket from an automated ticket booth located at the popular movie theatre, Commonwealth 20.

While enjoying a night with the boys, Sophomore Matt Daniel contemplates his faux bet based on his hand.

- Hang out at home - 30%
- Video Games - 13%
- Various Sports - 13%
- Movies - 9%

Sophomores Everett Smith, Jon Ports, Ben Wheat, and Alan Davis spend their night out in Williamsburg at a concert. "My friends are awesome people and hanging out with them is crazy," said Davis. Weekend activities varied from person to person, but each provided for a chance to escape the stress of high school and just have fun.

While the Ring Ceremony distinguishes juniors as upperclassmen, the privilege of driving to school also accompanies the feeling of getting older. For juniors, responsibility knocks on the door as SATs and college searches enter their world. With an official invitation to prom, the last big highlight of the year commences before entering their final year.

Claim to Fame

Receiving his award, Mr. Ted Salmon graciously accepts the honor that he has been given. "I am tremendously honored and humbled to be a member of the Athletic Hall of Fame and to be recognized for my contributions to the program," said Salmon. His many accomplishments earned him a seat in the Hall of Fame.

Representing the Hall of Fame Committee, Mr. Wayne Mehrer tells the audience about each of the nominees. "I think it is a great opportunity to recognize individuals that have given a lot at Clover Hill," said Mehrer. He has been involved in the search for the past two years.

To become a member of the Athletic Hall of Fame, one must demonstrate sportsmanship, leadership, and athleticism. Mr. Ted Salmon exemplified all of these characteristics and was inducted into the Hall of Fame on January 29, 2005. His accomplishments included being named Coach of the Year for four years and receiving the Lifetime Achievement award by the Richmond Touchdown Club.

History teachers support voting by taping election posters on their doors.

Voice Your Choice

As the presidential election lingered on every American's mind, the student body also considered the magnitude of this event. Government classes provided more awareness about the different platforms and explained how to register to vote. Many eighteen-year-olds also grasped the reality of their age, for the power to vote is the power to change.

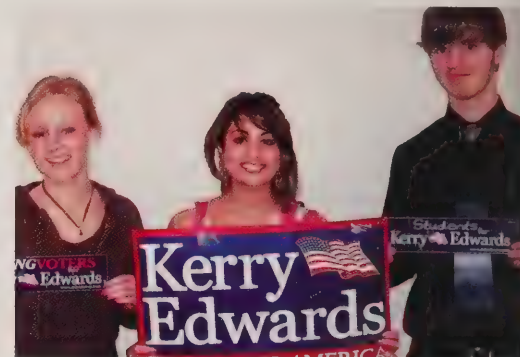

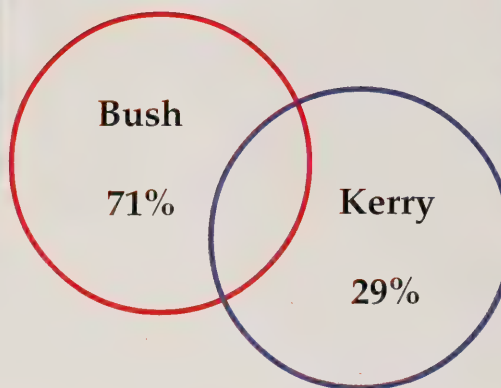

Students voice their choice with bumper stickers.

Seniors Brittany Burhop, Jared Lewis, and Jacqui Newman show their support for President George Bush. "Government class helped me choose which party I was for and who I should vote for," said Lewis. Many students voted for the first time this election.

STUDENT CHOICE

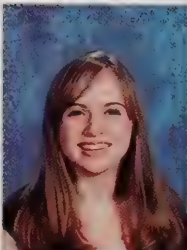

Seniors Michele Mellinger, Cami Auriolles, and Junior Michael Archer display their Kerry pride. "It's every American's responsibility to vote because we have the opportunity to voice our opinions in this country," said Mellinger. There was a variety of political views among students.

College Countdown

Above: Senior TJ Krecker poses in his Ferrum College shirt. "I wanted to go to Ferrum to play soccer and for the new experience," said Krecker. Some students were encouraged to attend colleges based on athletic scholarships.

At some point during their four years of high school students begin to plan where they want to go to college. Although staying in state offers many advantages such as lower tuition and being close to home, many students still decided to venture out of state. "I want to go to college out of state because I've practically lived in Virginia my whole life. I feel that there is so much of this country that I need to see and experience and college is a great way to do that," said Senior Natalie Alberg. Whether students chose to stay in state or go out of state, their experience in high school helped prepare them for the future.

● Maddie Woods

Right: Seniors Molly Tucker, Matt Zackon, Liz Strine, Kellye Semonich and Carl Lanier show off their favorite colleges. "I have grown up around UVA and wanted to go there since a young age. The in state tuition and short distance are an added bonus," said Lanier. Seniors had many different choices for their future destination.

Freshman Colin Keyser shows off his support for an out of state college in Maryland.

Fashion Forward

Even with the constantly changing temperatures outside, with one week in the 40's and the next in the 70's, fashion remained a constant inside the school. Popular styles for girls included shrunk jackets, Uggs with skirts, dangling earrings, and strands of pearls. Guys' fashion styles included pastel dress shirts, moccasins, polo shirts, and popped collars. A single glance down the hallways revealed a wide variety of fashion, whether preppy, Emo, vintage, or a look unique to only one person.

● Katie Peng

Polo shirts, such as Freshman Taylor McKay's, were popular for both boys and girls.

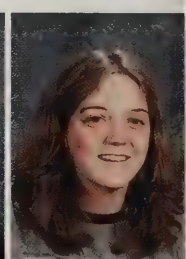

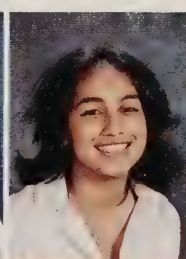

Seniors Courtney DeMaria and Ashley Narvaez show off their side-swept bangs. "Fashion is a great way to express yourself," said DeMaria. Another popular style for girls was wearing scarves as belts.

Fitted blazers, such as Sophomore Iffie Ikem's, and V-neck sweaters were worn with sequined or lacy camisoles.

Though the special parking spaces and reserved lunch line are advantages that come along with senior year, there are more aspects to look forward to than just the privileges. For seniors, it's the year that final memories of high school are formed. With graduation, one of life's chapters comes to a close and a new journey begins.

*"Take care of all your memories for you can not relive them."
~Sally Bull*

*"Since it is senior year, I have begun to see things as potential absences. The things I love will become the things I miss."

Whether it's studying all night for the next big test or spending countless hours filling out college applications, the efforts put forth in academics all tend to pay off in the end.

A Meeting of Minds

math and science hosts the school's first ever convocation

January 11th marked an important event in the history of the Mathematics and Science High School. For the first time ever, students from all four grades joined together for a formal convocation. Students listened to speeches from Seniors Sally Bull and Tim Clark, as well as Freshman World History teacher, Mr. Michael Loret. Mathematics and Science alumni Mason Shea, a sophomore at Virginia Tech, returned to share how his experiences at the Mathematics and Science High School have influenced him in college. Members of the Mathematics and Science Student Advisory Council as well as Mathematics and Science Coordinator Mr. Sloan Burns came up with the idea for the convocation when trying to find ways to reinforce the goals of excellence in the program. "I liked the idea because we've never gotten together as a whole school. Students had the chance to get to know grades other than their own," said Senior Jacqui Wheeler, a member of the Student Advisory Council. The program was concluded by a reception hosted by Math and Science parents.

1. Sophomore Kristen Felix talks with friends after breaking from the auditorium. "The reception was awesome. I had so much fun hanging out with all my friends," said Felix. Students enjoyed cake, spoke with faculty, and discussed aspects of the presentation.

2. Juniors Olivia Hallihan and Lauren Moon pose for a picture after the convocation. "I thought it was great how Mason was able to show us how his experiences at Math and Science really prepared him for college," said Moon. Mason Shea graduated from the Math and Science program in 2003.

3. Senior Anne Coppa and Junior Molly Mahoney share a laugh at the convocation reception. "The convocation showed me that the Math and Science program really pays off in the long run," said Mahoney. Students heard speeches from seniors as well as Math and Science graduates and teachers.

4. Sitting in the auditorium, freshmen listen to guidance from various speakers. "The Math and Science convocation was very informative and really showed me what Math and Science can help me achieve," said Freshman Benji Cook. The convocation offered advice on important time management and study skills.

Original History...

The Mathematics and Science High School opened in 1994 as one of Chesterfield County's first specialty centers. Its goal was to create an accelerated learning environment for students while offering a diverse curriculum with an enhanced focus in both math and science.

1. Senior Megan Baker balances equations in her AP Chemistry class. "AP Chemistry has helped further my education for nursing school this fall," said Baker. AP Chemistry students used labs and classroom instruction to help prepare them for their AP test.

2. Senior Byron Knowlson measures for a lab. "I thought I already knew all of the important stuff about the environment, but this class has taught me about stuff I had no idea existed," said Knowlson. AP Environmental Science allows students to learn hands-on about our environment.

3. AP teacher Mrs. Lampley guides Senior Jillian Lyttle during an experiment. "I took Environmental Science to learn interesting things about the environment and how we effect it," said Lyttle. Students learned about all of the aspects of our environment.

4. Senior BJ Ward ponders the answer to a homework question. "Taking AP Chemistry is going to help me out a lot when I am majoring in chemical engineering next year," said Ward. AP classes allowed students to experience classes in the subjects they wish to pursue in the future.

Students who took AP classes could receive college credit by taking an AP test in their subject at the end of the course. Colleges then looked at their scores on each test and decided if they would accept that score. If the college accepted, the student was given the opportunity to not take the course their freshman year in college.

Smart Start

students use ap classes to jump start their college education

With their futures in mind, many students decided to take Advanced Placement courses in order to prepare themselves for what lay ahead in college. By taking and passing an AP test at the end of the school year, they were given the opportunity to earn college credit. "Now that I have taken AP Literature, I will be able to recognize literary elements once I get to college and write better papers," said Senior Dani Halbleib. AP classes were offered in Science, Social Studies, English, Art, Foreign Languages, and Math. For students wishing to major in music, AP Music Theory was also offered for the first time this year. Even though the AP classes offered a harder workload than most courses, students embraced the challenge. Without AP classes, many students would not be thoroughly prepared for college. "AP's have been a good way to prepare myself for the rigorous college classes," said Junior Lindsay Loevenstein. The various AP classes that were offered allowed students to get a jump start on their college education and learn skills that will help them in the future.

Foreign Forté

students reach beyond language requirements

In the past, foreign language has been taken mainly to fulfill diploma requirements, but students developed other reasons to further their education in a secondary language. Foreign language students surpassed minimal standards because of a desire to master a different language. Spanish was a popular choice because of its growing appearance in America. "I volunteer at Commonwealth Clinic, and its a big relief to people that I can speak their native language," said Junior Jaimie Eissler. Students also continued into their fourth, fifth and even sixth year of their selected language in order to become fluent for potential travel opportunities. When considering their future plans, students decided to move into the more intense levels just in case they wanted to pursue a foreign language in college or for their careers. For example, Latin prefixes are extremely useful for future medical students. Even though only three years of a foreign language are mandatory for the advanced diploma, students chose to embrace the challenge of extending their knowledge of a different language and culture.

1. Senior Tasha Crisman concentrates on the assigned exercises. "I pursued German into my fourth year to help prepare myself for college-level German classes," said Crisman. Many Seniors chose to continue their foreign studies in college.

2. Polishing her French essay, Junior Kristin Stannard looks up a correct spelling. "By choosing to continue my French studies, I have gained a better understanding of the French language and culture. I can really appreciate it now!" said Stannard. Foreign languages expanded students' global and cultural awareness.

3. Junior Ryan Goode works steadily on a Spanish quiz. "My Spanish education will be useful when I go to Ecuador for a month this summer to help build houses," said Goode. Students implemented their knowledge from the classroom into their travels abroad.

4. Rushing to finish before the bell rings, French partners Junior Andrew Godburn and Senior Natalie Albers work hard until the last second of class. "Even though AP French is a challenge, it will be rewarding if I can exempt from foreign language in college," said Albers. Students received college credit if they scored a three or higher on the AP exam.

Foreign language students had the unique opportunity to travel abroad during the summer with other high schools.

Original Travels...

These adventures occurred in places such as Spain, France, Mexico and Germany. Latin students also visited Italy over Spring Break. By immersing themselves in the true culture of different countries, students embraced foreign language in a way not possible inside of the classroom.

2. Senior Jessica VanDyke completes her classwork in Mr. Martin's class. "Taking marketing throughout high school has allowed me to expand my understanding of the business world while having a good time with the one and only Marty!" said VanDyke. Varied courses allowed marketing to be an ongoing elective.

3. Concentrating on his assignment, Junior Chris Russell strives to succeed in AP Economics. "I like to personify economics to better relate it to my life. That's why I call it Mr. Economics," said Russell. Students found a way to make marketing an entertaining experience.

4. Senior Kristina Hamill works in AP Economics. "This class is a unique opportunity to learn about a different side of marketing that may be more difficult, but the teachers make it interesting," said Hamill. The new AP course made marketing a more challenging elective.

The marketing teachers put faces to people in the business world by inviting guest speakers that provided useful tips for future occupations. The creator of Dominic's, a popular sausage chain, explained how he began his business in a small trailer. Other speakers included a representative from the Art Institute and parents in diverse marketing careers.

Mixing Business With Pleasure

varied classes make marketing more exciting

New classes added more appeal to the electives offered in the marketing department. AP Economics was a new addition to the marketing choices while Sports Marketing had a large growth in popularity. AP Economics focused on how the economy functions, and Sports Marketing was centered around learning to promote the different fields of sports, recreation and entertainment. Yet another class option, International Marketing, provided a better understanding of worldwide economics and relations. DECA, a club for marketing students, also saw significant growth. DECA members participated in competitions, local and national, that allowed them to show off the strategies they learned in the classroom. "Participating in state and national competitions have given me the opportunity to meet new people, go on vacation with my friends, and an experience to use the business skills I have learned in class," said Senior Jacqui Newman. These obtained skills prepared students for future careers and leadership positions. With more classes and a larger DECA, the marketing department established a stronger name among the student body.

Defining Creativity

a harder curriculum proves more of a challenge for art students

Many students used art to express themselves through the art classes offered by the fine arts department. Their creativity was shown through art, crafts, photography, and technical education. Students used those elective classes as an outlet of their artistic talent and a window into their imagination. The curriculum of the electives increased in difficulty; however, it only showed how creative students really were. "Art classes were a lot more complex this year and there was a lot more work; however, the assignments were more interesting and we had more of a choice in projects," said Junior Megan Celuck. Although a harder curriculum challenged students to a harder level, students took fine arts electives to ease stress of schoolwork. "Crafts class enabled me to expand my creativity and skills and still have fun at the same time," said Junior Christi Johnson. Their artwork was displayed at various local businesses and entered into festivals and competitions in the community. Art classes offered students the opportunity to show themselves and others their unique designs and creative potential.

1. Junior Lara Stables sketches a portrait from a picture she took. "I feel like I can express myself and not have strict guidelines like in other classes," said Stables. Many students used art classes as an outlet for their creativity.

2. Sophomore Christine Kyrkendall fills in the details of her painting. "Last year, this class had more set rules. This year, you have to have your own ideas, and be more creative in your work," said Kyrkendall. Students spent extra time perfecting their work.

3. Junior Kayla Rabus takes time to brainstorm ideas for her drawing. "I just love coming to Art everyday because it gives me a way to express myself," said Rabus. Students were able to express their thoughts through their artwork.

4. Senior Ali Nardacci reviews picture selections during her photo class. "After I take my pictures, I like to look at the photos to make sure nothing went wrong with the development," said Nardacci. In photography class, students learned techniques to develop their own film.

Students in Photography classes were given the opportunity to make pin hole cameras out of oatmeal boxes. These cameras were a unique way for students to take pictures from a small hole in the side of the camera. Students then took pictures of various scenes and people.

2. Junior Kristen Monahan edits her story for her spread. "It's been a fun, new experience, and it's been great being part of the yearbook staff," said Monahan. Staff members put in a lot of hard work to make the yearbook a success.

3. Senior Justin Anderson works with staff member Senior Sarah Michalowski on creating headlines. "This year we worked with staff members a lot more closely. I think the extra communication made things go a lot more smoothly," said Anderson. Editors were always available to answer questions for new staff members.

4. Senior Lauren Boehnlein and Junior Shannon Wallace look over quotes and captions. "Yearbook is great because you can get involved and you always know what's going on in school," said Wallace. Ideas for spread layouts and the yearbook theme were developed by both editors and staff.

A New Spin on It

dvd insert brings new life to the yearbook

In addition to creating a yearbook, the yearbook editors and staff put together a CD compilation of quotes and pictures that focus on sports and school highlights. The staff decided to take a new direction with the CD by updating it into a DVD. The new DVD addition included movie clips for each sport and school event. "Working on the DVD yearbook has been a fun experience for me, and I hope the student body will enjoy watching it as much as I did making it," said Senior Shelina Merchant, Editor of the DVD yearbook. With the new DVD, students had the ability to watch school events in motion rather than only seeing the pictures printed on pages. In the past, Ducemus has proven itself to be a yearbook of firsts. In 2003, it was the first yearbook in Chesterfield County to be completely printed in color. With the new DVD included along with each yearbook, Ducemus was the first yearbook in the county to produce a DVD addition. The yearbook editors and staff hope to continue their trend of breakthrough firsts into the future.

Spreading the Word

journalism strives to reach each student with the news

Every few months, students were handed a school newspaper as they walked through the doors in the morning. Behind the publication was a group of editors and staff, writing and editing each article. "Being an editor has showed me the hard work it takes to put a paper together, and how much it pays off when it finally comes out," said Junior Megan Shephard. With a large number of younger editors this year, each was able to contribute new, fresh ideas. Along with the staff, the group used teamwork to report information and school happenings. "We have a new perspective and different ideas this year. Our staff writers are also a new assortment of minds, and it is always cool to get a chance to change things up," said Junior Christina Giamo. Each deadline, the class met to brainstorm events and activities that might be of interest to students in the paper. Creativity, imagination, and skillful journalism were evident as they worked to keep the school abreast of events and activities.

2. Juniors Zach Rimmel and Chris Russell discuss ideas for their next story. "Journalism gives me the chance to write about things that interest me," said Russell. Journalism students displayed their writing skills in each edition of the paper.

3. Junior Katie Nicholson looks for mistakes in a draft of the paper. "I like interviewing people and having my name in the paper. It is nice to know I am contributing to the paper," said Nicholson. Staff and editors worked together to produce a worthy paper with no mistakes.

4. Senior Editors-in-Chief Kate Vance and Brittany Burhop set up layouts on the computer. "It is fun to save all the issues and look back to see how my writing has progressed," said Burhop. Through the class, students were able to improve journalistic writing skills.

Original Honors...

Each year, newspapers around the state compete and are scored in competitions. Editors and staff work to make sure the paper is mistake-free, and interesting to readers, and judges. At the VHSL state newspaper competition, the paper won first place for newspaper and media excellence.

2. Senior Chris Blake and Junior Solle Taghavi rehearse for their performance in Duo Interpretation. "In Duo Interpretation, you really have to trust your partner and bounce off one another," said Blake. The pair was awarded second place in their first competition together.

3. Senior Hailey Black and Freshman Patrick Brennan chat before their competition. "Forensics competitions are a great way to showcase all the hardwork and time that everyone dedicates to the team and it's always nice to win," said Black. Forensics practiced once a week in preparation for each competition.

4. Sophomore Katherine Wall performs a monologue for her theater class. "Theater is different because the classes are mixed, and we get to show our creativity and diversity," said Wall. Theatre classes gave students an opportunity to meet new people and improve their acting ability.

Center Stage

drama students continue to excel at competitions

The award winning Forensics team strived to keep their tradition of success at District and Regional competitions. Once a month, they competed in categories such as poetry, dramatic interpretation, and original oratory. The competitions involved acting out literature without the use of props, thus challenging students' creativity. "Being in Forensics for three years has helped me develop speaking and acting skills and become more professional," said Junior Solle Taghavi. Their ultimate goal for the year was to place in the VHSL State Tournament. During class, theater students were given the opportunity to read famous plays and then act them out on stage in front of their classmates. "It's nice to get to be someone else for a change and get to act like someone you aren't," said Sophomore Grace Cuenin. Theater students also studied various movie stars from the past and their contributions, which have paved the way for future actors. The addition of another theater teacher, Mr. Davis, further enhanced students' knowledge and enthusiasm for theatre.

One hundred and eighty students participated in the band program and gained a better appreciation and understanding of music. Band gave students the opportunity to perfect their musical abilities on their own particular instruments and harmoniously combine their talents into a finished song. Through this unification of talents, a friendly camaraderie developed. "Band class gives us a chance to be better friends as we work towards our goal. Music is fun and so are we," said Senior Dani Halbleib. By giving students a chance to work with one another while being exposed to numerous musical styles, band class fostered a unique learning atmosphere. Students also enjoyed the variation that it added to their mostly academic classes. "Band has always been a nice break from my busy schedule; a time I could just sit and be surrounded by the music," said Senior Kathleen Campbell. The countless hours of practice and cooperative teamwork were finally revealed in three successful concerts.

● Sarah Michalowski and Chelsea Sligh

1. The band's feature bassoon player, Senior Gail Senatore, rehearses her fingerings. "I've really enjoyed playing the bassoon in high school and I want to continue with it even after graduation," said Senatore. Many students continue on with their music after high school.

2. Junior Leland Waight focuses on his music during band class but also enjoys conversing with his classmates. "Everybody in band is very friendly, and we're all able to hang out and have a good time," said Waight. Band students, including Waight, enjoyed this cooperative attitude.

3. Junior Margaret Pollard, a bass clarinet player, prepares for an upcoming concert. "Playing for an audience is very gratifying, especially when they stand and cheer for us," said Pollard. The band presented their best songs at three different concerts.

4. Junior Paul Simpson practices his unique instrument. "I play the bass clef baritone horn. No one else plays it; therefore, I get a unique, one-of-a-kind sense from playing my part at concerts and in class," said Simpson. It was the combination of these individual instruments that gave band such a full sound.

Original Attitude...

To be completely candid, band has never been the "coolest" program in which to participate; however, several students have a new approach to band and choose rather to embrace its innate dorkiness. "Call me a band geek if you want, but I won't be able to hear you over the band," said Junior Priscilla Douberly.

1. At the fall concert, New Dimensions performs one of their program songs. "Show choir is a time where I can incorporate my passion for both singing and dancing while making friends at the same time," said Senior Rachel Rodgers. Many of the students in show choir are friends inside and outside the classroom.

2. Singing in the acapella portion of the show, many guys in show choir are in both the acapella group Acropolis as well as the show group New Dimensions. "Its a really good experience because you get both ends of the spectrum, acapella on one end and singing and dancing on the other," said Senior Coleman Lucado. The group performs all of their pieces without any instrumental music.

3. The advanced show choir group Aria show off their singing abilities during this concert. "I love to sing, and working with the other girls make it a blast and it's so much fun performing with them," said Sophomore Tatum Deming. Many girls in show choir hope to continue singing all four years.

4. Having time to practice songs and routines for upcoming shows is a great reason why chorus is offered as a class during the school day. "Performing in concert really pays off because we are able to show others all of the hard work we put into our performances," said Sophomore Shannon Grosse. Reading from sheet music, Grosse worked on learning a new song.

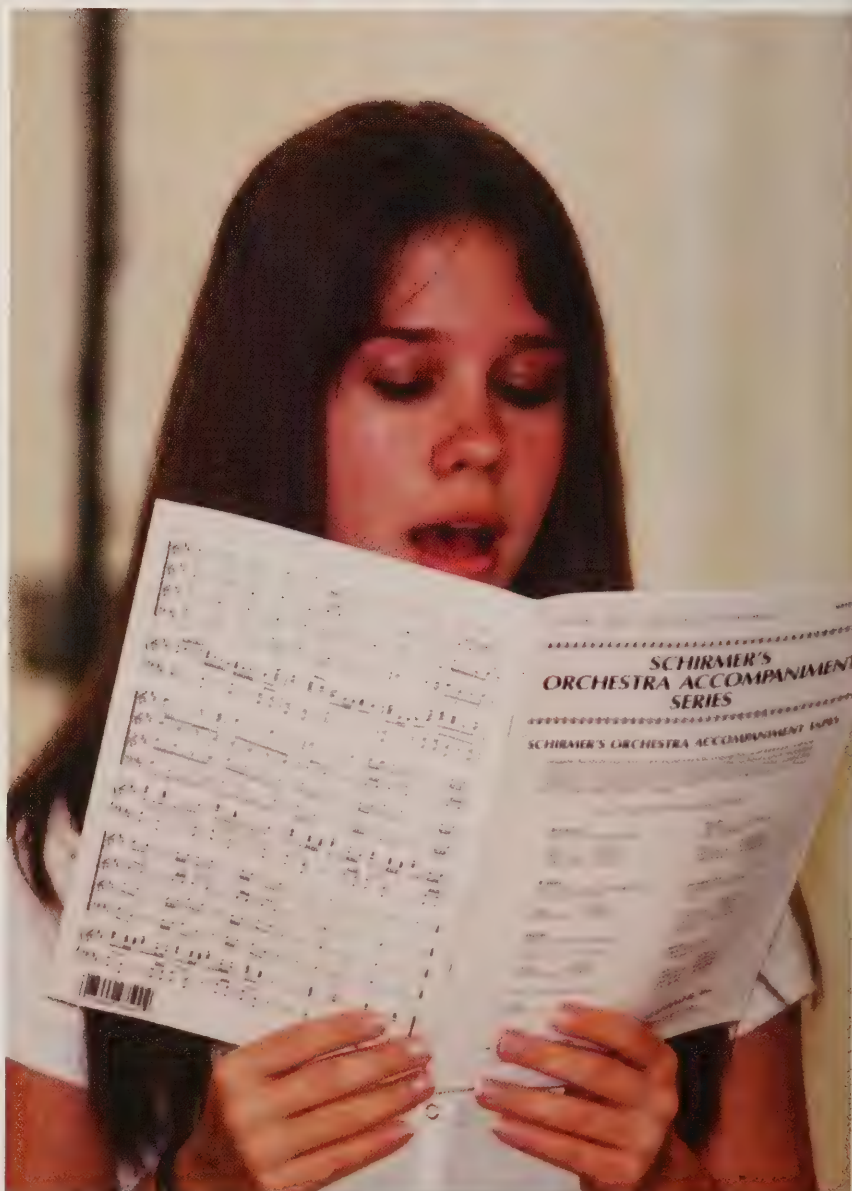

Original Practices...

Did you know that chorus students commit themselves to stay extra hours after school, or come to school long before any of the other students are even thinking of waking up to practice and perfect their performance? They even come to school over the weekends.

Singin' a New Tune

show choir shows off their new moves

Consisting of new song selections with energetic singers and the choreography to match, school chorus is one of the most involved groups in school. With many different levels, active students holding various musical abilities had opportunities to excel in their own ways. "The show is more energetic and the choreography is more involved," said Senior Ronny Nowland, a member of the vocal group New Dimensions. Throughout the school day, each choral group practiced to perfect their singing and dancing in the classroom. Putting on many performances throughout the year helped showcase all of the student's hard work in the classroom. To add to the excitement of the school program, the school also hosted its first competition for the local schools in the area. "For the first time, we hosted a competition which was a lot of fun, and exciting new experience," said Senior Lindsay Reynolds. With a combination of great moves, fun songs, constant hard work and dedication, chorus members were constantly rockin' and rollin'.

students reveal talent with an increase in strength and size

The sweet strumming of strings engulfed the hallways more than ever. With crisp new talent knocking at the door, the Freshman Orchestra provided an abundance of ambitious souls for teacher and conductor, Mrs. Melissa Gordon, to mold into the elite musicians of tomorrow. Other players from all grade levels formed the upper level Concert Orchestra. Due to a sky-high enrollment, two periods were added to accommodate these students. With an invitation to participate in the Music Festival hosted by the Epcot Center of Disney World, students "strived towards excellence," said Junior Lindsay Mackey, violinist of Concert Orchestra. Known for representing the strings department on such trips, Chamber Orchestra recently expanded from the petite size of only 23 players to a massive 35 musicians. "I feel that the size is too large for a proper chamber group, but it is essential to the group's survival due to the many graduating seniors," said Senior Chris Alexander, cellist of Chamber Orchestra. Although numerous Senior musicians left the program, new found strength in numbers proved that no orchestra student pulled any strings.

3. Paying close attention to detail, Sophomore violinist Jessica Burton pays attention to the dynamic contrast in the piece. "I really like practicing because music lends itself to every emotion," said Burton. Burton enjoyed a break in Math and Science scheduling to express herself using musical abilities in orchestra class.

4. Another participant in the All County Orchestra, Senior Jillian Lyttle, is named the first chair viola player. french club

Junior Jennifer Parsons and Freshmen Everett Bartlet and Maurene Wisniewski decorate their pumpkin with the colors of the French flag.

As a member of the French Club, each participant attended monthly gatherings with corresponding themes to each month or season. French culture and traditions were expressed through activities such as watching French movies and eating French foods. The club also collaborated their funds to support an impoverished child in Haiti.

mu alpha theta

Mu Alpha Theta was a math honor society, which required members to maintain a GPA of 3.8 or higher in their math classes in order to participate. It offered tutoring sessions twice a week in all levels of mathematics throughout the year. "Being tutored by your peers is so much more relaxing than being tutored by someone who has a degree in math," said Senior Fegan Hewitt.

Mind Games

chess club

The members of chess club gather to take a group photo.

Chess Club members met every Thursday after school to challenge each other in the thought provoking game of chess. "Being in the club is humbling to be surrounded by superior intellects," said Junior Mike Mahoney. The Chess team competed in the GRHSCL championship and took home the second place trophy.

Mike Mahoney

"The lucidity of thought present in the Chess Club environment is un-parralleled to any other school based organization."

The Write Stuff

literary magazine

Mrs. Williams instructs Sophomore Stephanie Dickerson.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Williams, the fourth block creative writing class compiled a magazine to exhibit their literary skills. By editing each other's papers and providing helpful suggestions, students created a literary magazine worthy of competition.

Sophomore Kendall Baker composes a new long fiction piece. "I like to write long fiction and poetry because it allows me to be creative and incorporate my own ideas into my school work," said Baker. She enjoys creative writing class and plans to go into journalism next year.

Anna Howard

"Writing is an outlet for my emotions."

First Row: Jami Carlton, Kayli Rowsell, Kelsey Haynes, Jasmine Reeder. Second Row: Antonio Harris, Jon Ports, Alan Davis, Everett Smith, David Sager. Third Row: Daniel Clarke, Matt Clarke, Chris Lillard, Stephen Schaefer, Bobby Laigaie.

Each morning, 20 to 30 students met by the stairs in the foreign language hall for short devotionals and a brief opportunity to enjoy the fellowship of other Christians. Everyday brought new opportunities for the students to build strong bonds with each other and share their faith.

The members of Crosspoint gather together for their daily prayer.

Jon Ports

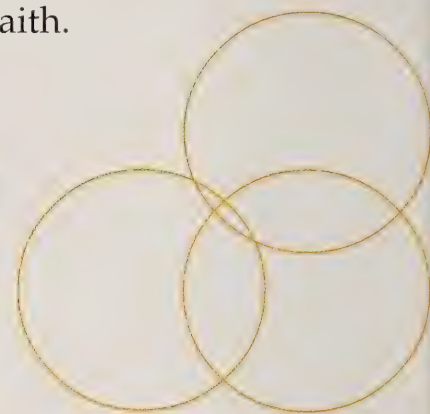

Kelsey Haynes and Kayli Rowsell

"Crosspoint is a good way to spend each morning with your friends while having devotions."

Fellowship and Fun

fellowship of christian athletes

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes profess their faith in a different perspective than church groups, or Sunday school classes. In between community speakers and students giving Bible readings, there is an intense sense of spirit and faith common among the individuals who come to the meetings.

Speaker Tiffany Woods from Channel 8 talked to FCA members inspiring them in their faith.

Tiffany Woods

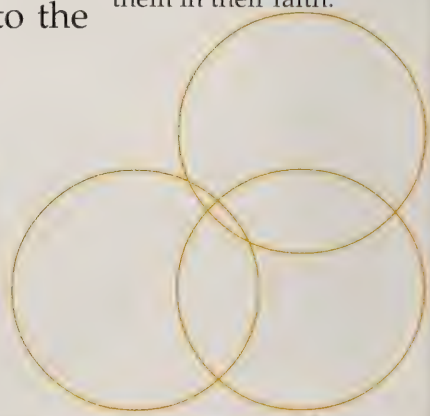

Kelsey Haynes

"FCA is one of the places that I can be myself and no one will judge me. I love it!"

The Forensic Files

forensics

Senior Chris Blake and Junior Solle Taghavi joke around before a competition.

The Forensics team had to have dedication to continue polishing their acting and speaking skills on their own. Everyone helped one another and they improved together. It took a lot of discipline, but they enjoyed it and managed to still have fun at the same time. Throughout the year the team participated in competitions near and far.

A Potion for Emotion

Junior Alexa Durnwirth helps Seniors John Fisher and Matt Zackon solve a dispute.

Conflict Managers was composed of a group of students who were trained to counsel peers with conflicts. This program was designed to allow students to talk to each other in a non-confrontational way and with the support of the Conflict Mediators. The Conflict Managers met during seventh block one day for training.

First Row: Lindsey Wagner, Lindsay Baxter, Alexa Durnwirth. Second Row: Brittany Collins, Rachel Hoagland, Hayley Tucker, Christopher Silvestri, Sara Kilgore. Sponsor: Gloria Starkman.

of 2005!
Good luck next year!

Dear Megan,

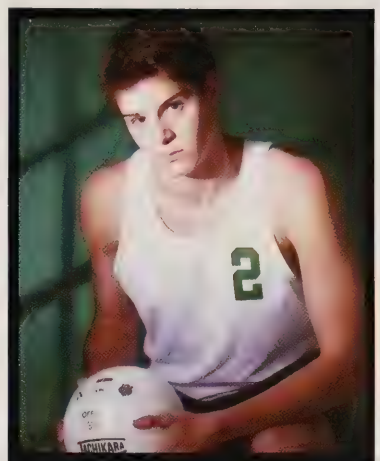

We have enjoyed watching you grow and mature. It is hard to believe that our little girl is finishing her high school years. You have so many incredible qualities - you can be sensitive but also quite humorous. You work hard but yet remember to keep things in perspective. As you make your journey through life, remember to maintain this balance.

With all our love,
Mom, Dad and Justin

Believe In Yourself

As the dawn of each morning peers into your life.
There lays a path to follow.
Delicate whispers can be heard.
When listening to the sound of your heart.
And the voice that speaks within you.
If you listen closely to your soul.
You will become aware of your dreams.
That are yet to unfold.
You will discover that, there lies within you
A voice of confidence and strength.
That will prompt you to seek a journey.
And live a dream.
Within the depths of you mind.
The purpose and direction of your life.
Can be determined by listening intently.
To the knowledge that you already possess.
Your heart, mind and soul.
Are the foundation to your success and happiness.
In the still of each passing moment.
May you come to understand.
That you carry the capabilities.
That will aid you in reaching a higher destiny.
When you come to believe in all that you are.
And all that you can become.
There will be no cause for doubt.
Believe in your heart, for it offers hope.
Believe in your mind, for it offers direction.
Believe in your soul, for it offers strength.

Leslie A. Neilson

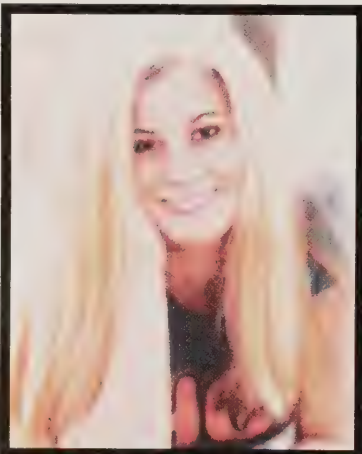

Heather, we could not possibly put into words how blessed we feel with you as our daughter, and how wonderful it has been to watch you grow and become the beautiful person you are today. If we had the opportunity to start all over again, we would jump at the chance and not change a thing. Continue to trust in who you are. Know that we will always be there for you. We love you with all our hearts.
Love, Dad, Mom, and Alex

Our deepest fear is not that we are inadequate.
Our deepest fear is that we are powerful beyond measure.
It is our light, not our darkness that most frightens us.
We ask ourselves, who am I to be brilliant, gorgeous, talented and fabulous?
Actually, who are you not to be?
You are a child of God. Your playing small doesn't serve the world.
There's nothing enlightened about shrinking so that other people won't feel insecure around you.
We were born to make manifest the glory of God that is within us.
It's not just in some of us; it's in everyone.
And as we let our own light shine, we unconsciously give other people permission to be the same.
As we are liberated from our own fears, our presence automatically liberates others.

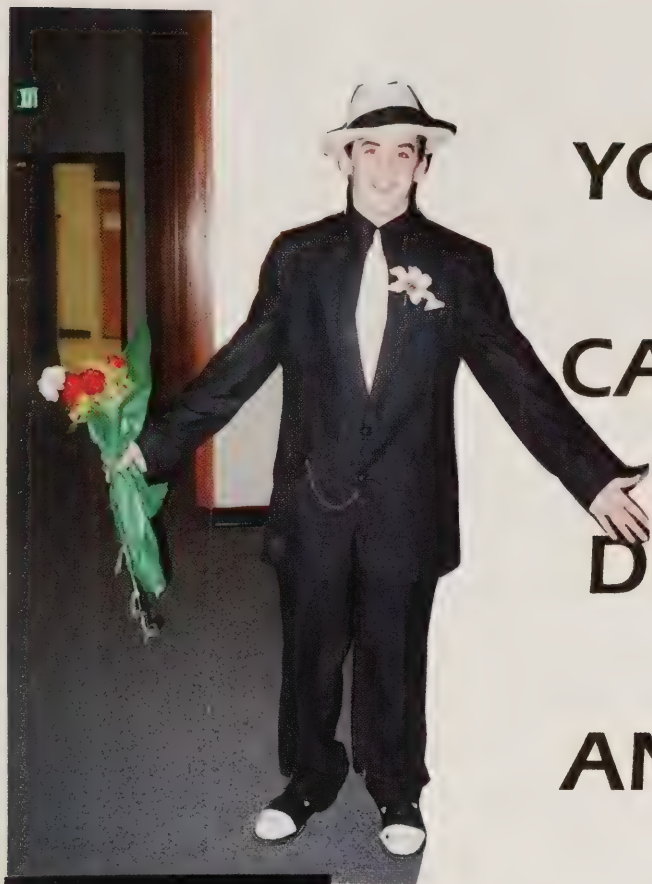

*"To achieve all that is possible,
We must attempt the impossible.
To be as much as we can be,
We must dream of being more."*

*Follow your dreams Lindsay:
Your life is full of endless possibilities...
May the road always rise to meet you,
May the wind be always at your back,
And may the Lord God hold you in the palm of his hand forever!*

Liz,

The world is your canvas and you have already begun to paint a beautiful picture. When you were brought into this world we never knew what an amazing journey it would be with our little girl.

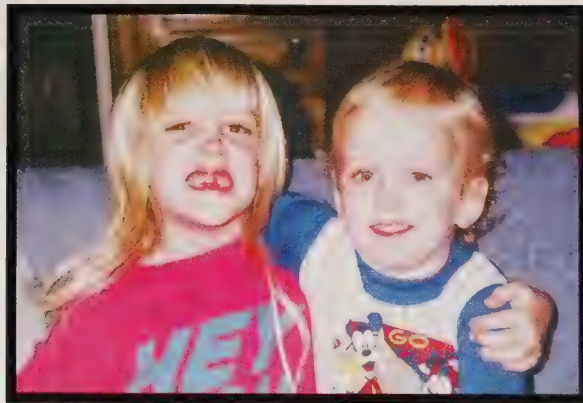

You have a smile to melt our hearts and a laugh that is contagious. You have a love for life but do so without compromising your values and your faith. Of course a little bit of strong will has been thrown in along the way.

Liz wherever life leads you always remember that your family loves you and supports your decisions. "There are two lasting bequests we can give to our children: one is roots, the other is wings." Now it's your time to soar!

Love,

Dad, Mom, Erin, and Erica

Dearest Jessie,
We are truly blessed that God has allowed us to have you in our lives and we are so very proud of the compassionate, sensitive and kind young woman that you have become. As you

Dear Omar,
Congratulations!!!

From the moment you were born, you have been a special gift to us. You have tackled adversity and shown an incredible will to survive. We are so proud of how you have always demonstrated great judgment and character, and for the remarkable man you have grown up to be. Your strength, determination, and your willingness to care for others will continue to serve you well in the future. You have never been afraid to be yourself. We wish you the best of luck and we will always be there for you!

Love you!!!!

Dear Jared,

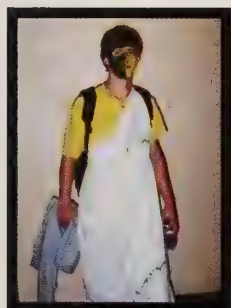

It's hard to believe how fast time flies! It seems like yesterday you were "graduating" from preschool and now you've grown into this wonderful young man graduating from high school. Soon the next chapter in your life, college, will begin. Son, I am so very proud of you and thankful that God gave me the privilege of being your Mom. Being a Mom to you and Lyndsey has been the most important job in the world to me and you made it so easy.
You were always such a blessing. God has allowed us to walk through trials, but he has never left our side and he has always remained faithful. Keep him first and the rest will happen. You are so special and have brought so much joy into many lives and you know I wish you only the best and look forward to what is planned for you ahead.
Lyndsey will miss her "big brother" watching over her so close by (or maybe not)! I love you so much and am so proud of all you have accomplished. But most of all, who you have become!

Love always,
Mom and Lyndsey

Matt,

You were six months old and full of fun,
With the blink of an eye, you were suddenly one.
There were so many things we were going to do,
But I turned my head and suddenly you were two.
At two you were very dependent on me,
But independence took over when you turned three.
Your third birthday, another year to ignore,
But when I lit the candles, there weren't three, but four.
Four was the year you really strived,
Why, look now, you're already five.
Now you are ready for books
and rules,
This is the year that you go to school.
The big day came, you were anxious to go.
We walked to the bus, going oh,
so slow.
As you climbed aboard and waved good-bye,
I felt a lump in my throat and tears stung my eyes.
Time goes by so fast, it's hard to believe
That just yesterday you were home with me.
And tomorrow when the bus
brings you home
And you jump to the ground,
You'll be wearing your cap and graduation gown.
So I'm holding to these moments as hard as I can,
Because the next time I look, I'll be seeing a man.

Before we know it, the time has come for us to turn in our books and clean out our lockers. We leave behind past memories to cherish and we prepare for new beginnings to face. We leave behind fresh footsteps for others to follow and we move on to new challenges to overcome. The time has come for us to just be who we are meant to be.

For making it possible for us to put this book together, we would first like to thank our Jostens Representative, Mrs. Jan DeFalco. Without your help, our book would not have been as successful as it turned out to be. You helped us take our book to the next level by teaching us new computer tricks and we are grateful for all of the support and encouragement you gave us.

To the entire yearbook staff: Thank you for always sticking with us. You never turned down an opportunity to help the two of us out, especially when we were stressed over unexpected computer problems and strict deadlines. We wish you all the best of luck in the future with whatever you choose to do, but remember to just be yourself no matter what happens.

Emily and Kendra, the future Editors-in-Chief: All of your hard work has given us the confidence to know that you two will stay dedicated and do an awesome job next year. Of course it will be difficult to make the book better than it was this year, but you will both have to try! Remember, if you have nothing to do, you're doing something wrong, so don't procrastinate! Be creative and make the book something to be proud of. Good luck and have fun!

Finally, we would like to express our greatest thanks to our mentor, Mrs. Ritamarie Hensley. Over the past four years, you have taught us all that we have needed to know. From our first experiences in Math Sci English to our 7 A.M. finishing touches on the morning of graduation, you have been there to answer our questions and fill us in on the latest gossip. We will keep all that we have learned from you fresh in our minds as we move on to pursue careers in the journalism field and follow our dreams. Thank you for the memories and all that you have given us. We will keep you in our hearts forever!

The 2005 Clover Hill Ducemus, Volume 33, "Just Be..." was produced under the leadership of the Editors-in-Chief, Jessie Goodman and Sally Bull. The 264 pages were printed on a sheet fed press on 9" by 12" #80 glossy enamel paper. It had a press run of 1150 copies. All 264 color pages were created on G3 and G4 Macintosh computers using Adobe PageMaker 6.5.
